Damage Slight as Storms Batter Area

Wind Downs Trees

Storms which this week battered the Peninsula as of yesterday had done surprisingly little damage in the Menlo Park area, a check with emergency services showed late yesterday.

In Atherton, some trees fell but only one of them even temporarily blocked a street; Menlo Park street department workers also noted a few limbs and small trees down.

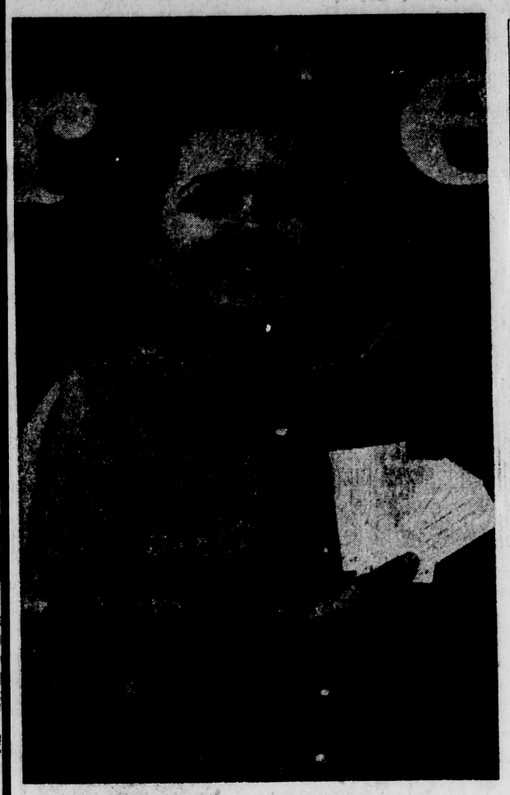

Police departments in both cities reported no storm-caused injury accidents and added that minor accidents, seemed to be occurring with no more frequency than usual.

The Menlo Park Fire District had received some calls about flooded basements but as is usual in such cases, took no action except in cases where a fire might result. There was only one such case: where water had extinguished a furnace fire and where gas was leaking.

The tree down in Atherton, which caused a minor delay in traffic, fell onto Fair Oaks lane, between homes at 135 and 145. Atherton police said that it fell from private property and a tree removal service was called.

In Menlo Park, a eucalyptus tree fell in Nealon park, and almond tree along Central avene was reported down, and a branch fell along Partridge street, but these were the only casualties.

Assistant Superintendent of Public Works Leonard Klein said that all of the city's storm drains appeared to be functioning properly, and that only during peak rains was there any evidence of water "backing up" along certain streets.

The Very First . . .

. . . person to be selected as a winner of two free tickets to the Park Theater, two free meals at Ken's pancake house and three silver dollars, in the Recorder's "lucky star" selections was Miss Lois Groshart, 1052 Berkeley avenue who read of her winnings early last Thursday morning. The names of five more lucky winners are to be found at various locations in this issue of the Recorder. Look for them; one of them might be yours!

Dump District Tax Deferred

Menlo Park residents will get a "free ride" for four and a half months at the South County Refuse and Garbage Disposal District yard off Marsh road.

This became evident Tuesday night during City Council action to approve a contract for fiscal year 1960-61 with the district.

Because the city couldn't be annexed in time to get on the district tax rolls for the new fiscal year, district directors and City Councilmen have agreed to use a contract setup.

And the directors plan to hold a special meeting Monday, City Manager John R. Johnson reported, to approve the contract.

This means that although city financial participation will not begin until July 1, city residents will be able to use the dumping facility next Tuesday under rates now used for district residents.

Now, city dwellers pay 50 cents a yard for burnable material, $1.25 for non-burnable material with a $1 minimum and a $15 maximum. With the privileges of district residents, they will be able to dump the first yard free and pay 25 cents a yard for burnable refuse and 75 cents for non-burnable material with a $10 maximum.

Under the contract terms, which had unanimous Council approval, a tax equal to that of the district's in 1960-61 will be applied on top of the present city rate to finance payment of the contract.

The district rate is now three and a half cents—but could be less for 1960-61, district officials have informed the Council.

Current thinking is that the rate may drop to two cents.

At the same time, Johnson told the Council, groundwork to finally get the city into the district will continue.

The technicality which kept the city off the district's 1960-61 rolls was that the County Boundaries Commission had not received information about the revised district boundaries in time.

Johnson said a map is being prepared for Commission study. When their action is completed, a petition of freeholders, requiring 50 names, will be circulated in Menlo Park and sent on to the Board of Supervisors. According to County officials, Johnon said, a public hearing can be held on April 5 followed by Supervisors' action to make the city a part of the district.

Dog Shot Here

Officials of the county Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the Menlo Park police yesterday were considering what kind of charges to file against Christer L. Haig, 705 Wallea drive, who reportedly has admittd the fatal shooting of a dog here Sunday afternoon.

Haig, according to Police Chief George Potter, has confessed.

Victim was a Dalmatian owned by James P. Fraser, 740 Wallea drive.

A neighbor who witnessed the shooting said he heard the noise of a pellet gun going off, and looked outside to see the dog run in a wide circle, then run past his own home and to the intersection of San Mateo drive and Middle avenue, where he died.

Chief Potter said that Haig admitted using a pellet gun. Haig said the dog was on Haig's property at the time he was shot.

Haig, according to Potter, said he didn't know the gun was loaded when he pointed it at the dog and squeezed the trigger.

All Eagles . . .

. . . Six members of Explorer Scout Post 204, which meets at Flood Park school, Monday night attended ceremonies for new Eagle Scouts held at the courthouse in Redwood City; their delegation represented one of the largest single groups of Scouts from the same unit ever to get Eagle rank at the same time. The six are, left to right, George Hirsch, Jim Stoddard, Paul Gaetano, Bob Susinetti, Joe Demeter and Billy Armstrong.

Nothing Changes:

City's 'Temporary Buildings' Apt to Be Around a Long Time

Construction of the city's new police station is going to change the physiognomy of the civic center somewhat, but it looks like most of the "temporary" buildings in the area going to remain in place for a good long time.

Just about the only one slated to come down is the present police station.

The present city hall, council chambers building and building department-water department buildings will stay.

And the former Girl Scout house—built by the Menlo Park Lions in 1950 and always owned by the city—which is to serve as the chief's temporary office during construction of the new station-house is going to have a long and useful life as a motorcycle garage.

The first major change in layout of the civic center will take place with the start of construction, which is to begin shortly after the police station bids are opened Feb. 23.

It'll consist of closing the Ravenswood avenue access road to the present gendarmerie, and the opening of a new road from Alma street to the site of construction.

The Girl Scout house had been situated in the path of this projected roadway anynow, according to City Manager John Johnson, and would have been moved whether or not the police had found a use for it.

However, it was last week moved to a vacant area north of the present police station and is now having a floor put under it.

YEARS OF USEFULNESS

Police Chief George Potter says the floor will be permanent, since the building will have to house motorcycles. Plans for a motorcycle garage were included in drawings for the new police station, but were cut out as an economy measure.

The old Girl Scout house probably also will house the bicycles which the police pick up, and periodically auction off.

Chief Potter said he hopes sales can be held every six months, rather than once a year, so the storage problem won't be as great as at present.

The Girls Scout house, incidentally, always has been city-owned, since the city can't allow a non-public ownership on its lands. At the time it was built it was dubbed "The Huttli" by the girls; it was a part of a small park-like layout which featured a council-fire pit, a flagpole, and a lawned area for ceremonies and play.

Through the years, as the town grew bigger, it became less and less possible for Girl Scout groups to use the building and a few months ago they contacted city officials to report they had no further use for the building.

The city manager asked—and received—a letter to this effect.

Meanwhile, new police station or not, the rest of the civic center will probably continue to look just as it now does, for a number of years.

There's a master plan for the over-all development of the area but its realization is pretty largely dependent on future bond issues and the like.

City officials hope it can be accomplished in another 20 or 25 years.

Firemen, SPCA Assemble To Rescue Dog

Firemen last Thursday at 3:10 p.m. were called to 56 Callie lane in the Lorelei Manor subdivision, to free a dog who got caught in a fence. The SPCA, however, got a call too, and one of its roving "animal ambulances" got to the scene first.

There hardly ever was such a well-rescued dog.

Home-Building Slackened During January

Though single-family residential construction showed a seasonal slowdown, volume of construction was heavy during January with 52 permits, authorizing a total of $465,645 worth of construction, issued during the month in Menlo Park.

The regular monthly summary issued by the city building department showed that only three single-family dwellings, having an aggregate valution of $39,000, were issued during the month.

But there were three apartment house jobs, with a total of 12 dwelling units and an aggregate valuation of $133,000, started.

Largest single job started was a $110,000 basement job at Stanford Research Institute.

Other categories of construction started during the month included 16 residence alteration jobs, with a total valuation of $24,030; 11 new non-residences, with a total valuation of $4865; 16 non-residence alteration jobs, with a valuation of $153,550 and two residence moves, with a total value of $1200.

Burglars Enter Offices Here

Burglars Monday night got an undisclosed amount of change from the office of the Utah Construction Co. at 1010 Doyle street, police said this week.

The officers said the burglars gained entrance to several offices in the building at that address, but didn't find much.

The burglary was discovered by Officer Ed Stone while on routine patrol early Tuesday.

New Planner Is Hired By Menlo Park

A 29-year-old University of California graduate has been appointed City Planner for Menlo Park, City Manager John R. Johnson announced this week.

Robert E. Gray, now associate planner in Placer County, will report here for work on Wednesday, March 16, Johnson told City Councilmen at their Tuesday night meeting.

The city manager said there were 12 candidates for the job recently vacated by Richard Gamble, now in private business in the Lake Tahoe area.

Seven of the interviews were held with chairman Charles Anderson of the Planning Commission present, Johnson said.

"We were very pleased in being able to get the top candidate," Johnson said.

Gray, a Navy veteran, attended Sierra College for two years and graduated in 1957 from University of California at Berkeley with an A.B. degree. He majored in architecture and minored in city planning.

Gray has been with the Placer County planning department for 2½ years, working out of the county seat in Auburn.

Gray is married and has three children. His starting salary will be $581 per month.

Johnson said he will arrange an introduction of the new planning director at a future Council meeting in March. Michael Bedwell, assistant to Johnson, will continue as temporary City Planner until Gray takes over.

Leaders Named As Building Canvass Nears

Members of a committee for the Nealon Park Recreation Building Fund drive were putting the finishing touches on a community-wide appeal this week, in preparation for contacts to all households in the city.

Mrs. Barbara Dolton, chairman of the actual fundraising committee, said that starting Feb. 18, letters are to be mailed to all homes in the city; the letter was designed and written by Mrs. Julie Munson. Mrs. Susan Corey also aided in preparation of the letter.

Mrs. Roz Wagner and Mrs. Carol Harris have prepared posters, which are to be distributed to prominent locations in Menlo Park, Mrs. Dolton said.

Lee Aubertine has been in charge of details of printing and mailing the letter.

Charlotte Minard has been named treasurer to receive contributions.

Mrs. Carolyn Worth has been named to contact clubs and other organized groups which might be interested in future use of the building, when it's completed.

Persons or organizations wishing to make contributions for the construction project, cost of which is estimated at between $27,000 and $30,000, may send them to postoffice box 693, Mrs. Dolton said.

Explosion Hits EPA Residence

Three windows were blown out of the John Black home at 451 Larkspur avenue in East Palo Alto Monday afternoon. Firemen said this resulted from an explosion of gasoline vapors.

The firemen, called to the home at 3:54 p.m. said that Mrs. Black reported she's been washing clothing in gasoline. She'd rung them out, she said, and put them in her automatic washer for final cleaning.

Gasoline vapor leaked from the machine and exploded, taking out the windows.

Women Hit In Crosswalk At Highway

Two women, employees of Stanford Research Institute, suffered apparently minor injuries early yesterday when they were knocked to the pavement as the result of an auto crash.

Police said the two, who had just alighted from a bus and who were crossing Ravenswood avenue at El Camino Real on their way to work, were Eleanor Pruitt, 26, of San Carlos, and Mary Bernice Jaeger, 55, of San Mateo.

They were hit by a car operated by Jack Gordon Falkner, 41, of San Mateo, which was spun into them when it was hit in the rear by an auto being driven north on the highway by John S. Sandretto, 48, of Sunnyvale.

The mishap occurred at 7:25 a.m. during a light rain, officers added.

Mrs. Pruitt complained of head injuries and Mrs. Jaeger, bruises and other possible injuries about the hips.

The women were in the crosswalk at the time they were knocked down, police said..

Womens' Pages Draw Praise

For the second time in three years, Menlo Park Recorder was last week judged to be giving the best women's interest coverage of any small weekly newspaper in California, Nevada or Hawaii.

Its women section was cited as the top entry from all the weeklies of northern California of any size, in a contest which was open to more than 200 publications.

The award was presented last Saturday morning at the "awards breakfast" of the 72nd annual convention of the California Newspaper Publishers Association, held in Los Angeles.

Publisher Clarence A. (Cab) Burley journeyed to Southern California to receive the award.

The winning women's interest sections represent the work of Recorder Society Editor Jeanne Taylor, who joined the paper's business office staff in November, 1957, and changed to the editorial department in February, 1958.

"The award," Burley said this week, "represents statewide recognition of our continuing effort to bring our readers an always-improving product.

"Through the years we have won several awards for excellence in various phases of newspaper production and coverage, but we still continue to work to make all parts of our paper even better."

The Recorder was not the only Peninsula newspaper to achieve recognition at this year's convention: The San Bruno Herald was judged best in the "general excellence" category of judging

Deadline for Fire Commission Candidates at Noon Today

Noon today is the final hour at which a challenger could file to run against incumbent Fire District Commissioner Wallace Ott, 1120 Hillview drive, whose present term expires this year.

As of yesterday, there was no indication that Ott would be challenged. But if a contest develops, the fire district's election date will be April 5.

Fire District Secretary John Smith said that Ott's nomination petition was the only one in hand at a late hour yesterday. No other petition blanks had been picked up at the fire district's headquarters at 300 Middlefield road, he added.

Traditionally, the fire district commission's three-man membership is made up of one man each from Menlo Park, Atherton and the unincorporated areas of the fire district.

Ott is the Menlo Park resident, and has served on the district board for the past eight years.

A resident of Menlo Park since 1941, he is an insurance broker; his family includes his wife and four children.

He is a member of the Menlo Park Lions Club.

Should Ott remain unchallenged, there will be no election on the scheduled date and he will be appointed to the post by the county board of supervisors.

Pumping Engine Now in Service

Menlo Park Dire District's new 1000-gallon-per-minute pumping engine is now in service, Chief George Carter said this week. Thus, almost all of the district's pumping appartus is now of modern vintage.

Next year the district will start replacing rescue squad trucks, the chief indicated. Some of the present units of this category are more than 20 years old.

Liz Taylor's 'Fan Club' Comes to Grief

A 19-year-old Menlo College student was arrested for being drunk in public after assertedly attempting to steal a poster from in front of the Park theater, 1275 El Camino Real, late Sunday night.

Two companions who were seen in the vicinity were not identified.

The poster taken was damaged an estimated $40, police Chief George Potter said this week, and the display case in which it had been kept was damaged to an extent of $25.

Chief Potter said that the poster, advertising the theater's current offering of "Suddenly Last Summer," depicted actress Elizabeth Taylor. A similar poster had been taken from in front of the theater the previous evening and, Chief Potter commented, the police think they know who got it.

Postal Drivers Get Awards For Safety

The power went off at 3:03 a.m.

A Quiet Street . . .

. . . since these houses were built in the 1880's, the section of Oak Grove avenue between Alma street and Laurel street is now in the path of apartment house development. Until a few weeks ago the short stretch of street had changed little in appearance from that of 70 years ago; now, some houses on the north side of the street have been razed and others, on the south side shown here, are soon to be moved or demolished.

Science Mentors Commended For Research

Lewis G. Karcher, science instructor at Menlo-Atherton High School, and Mrs. Mary Ann McLanathan, former science instructor at Menlo-Atherton, now associated with Foothill College, have just received special certificates of appreciation from the San Mateo County Heart Association for their assistance in the student research training program of the association.

"The enthusiastic assistance of the high school science instructors such as Karcher and Mrs. McLanathan have made possible the continuance of our student research programs," said Dr. Marvin L. Auerback, chairman of the student training committee.

Dr. Auerback emphasized that "we are trying to develop research skills with high school and junior college students, even though some of the projects may not have an apparent bearing on the cardio-vascular diseases."

Ounce of Prevention:

Fire Department Figures Show 'Levelling Off' of Losses

Fire loss to buildings and contents during 1959 has been totalled up to $220,546, Fire District Chief George Carter reported this week. The loss shows a levelling-off in damage from fire, he said, and is an indication of the effectiveness of the district's home inspection program.

"We were fortunate in that the number of structural fires has not increased," Chief Carter said. "In this regard a great amount of credit must be given to our fire prevention and fire inspection program."

To illustrate the effectiveness of the program, Chief Carter pointed to the previously released statistic which showed that the number of fires in homes had been reduced 15 per cent for the first nine months during which the home inspection program was in progress, as compared with the same period a year previously.

Carter's remarks were contained in a preliminary draft of the district's annual report. The report, which is to be submitted to commissioners, was not reproduced in time for the board's regular monthly meeting, which was held Monday night.

The department answered a total of 1057 alarms during 1959 and 530 of these were calls to fires. Only 184 of the fire calls involved structures, however, the chief said.

Concerning the effectiveness of the home inspection program the chief noted, "Although the home inspection program has consumed so much time as to cause some of our other work to be neglected, we feel the gratifying results compensate for the deficiencies."

'BUILDING'

A total of 99 of the fire calls answered were classified as "building fires."

By far the most popular type of fire put out by district personnel was the grass fire; firemen put out a total of 109 of these during the year.

In the case of alarms other than fires, the department responded to 128 of a type listed as "smoke investigation." There were 190 "special service" calls—which include such things as lockouts, ruptured water heaters and other minor domestic emergencies.

Responsiveness of off-shift firemen, to larms where buildings were involved, was also high. An average of 12 off-shift firemen turned up at every building fire to aid the average of 7.5 on-duty men who brought the firefighting apparatus to the scenes of such blazes.

Bigger fires, naturally, were fought by larger numbers of men.

In the case of all fires involving a loss of $1000 or more an average of 18.39 off-shift men showed up and the department in its immediate response to calls to such fires got an average of 8.29 men to each such fire.

Extent of the home inspection program was indicated by the fact that firemen visited a total of 4952 dwellings—along with 1996 business establishments—during the year.

All these calls were made by on-duty firemen who remained in contact with their stations via radio.

High level of training of the district's firemen was indicated by the lack of major injuries to them, during the course of fighting fires. Only seven firemen reported themselves injured during the year and none of the injuries were of a major nature.

There were two fatalities due to fires, in the district, during the year: Both occurred on Dec. 12 at a motel room in North Fair Oaks, and were the result of the same fire.

Animals, during the year were very, very good. The firemen pulled three cats out of trees, rescued another who had trapped itself under the cover of a wash tray, chased birds out of houses on three occasions, got one puppy out from under a house and rescued one dog from an uncomfortable position under a water heater.

Welfare Board Presents Party

The Menlo-Atherton High School's board of welfare sponsored a student government organization party Saturday night in "J" building. Invited were all members of M-A's board of welfare, student council, student court, safety council, and board of commissioners.

The first part of the evening the students watched a motion picture. Punch and cookies were served during the intermissions. Afterwards the members danced in the faculty dining room to records.

Commissioner of Welfare Frank Lee worked with Larry Blaich, general chairman, and Betty Calloway, refreshment chairman, to make the event a success. Also responsible were faculty advisors James Coffis and Julian Polon.

Scout Patrols Set Displays

Patrols of Boy Scout Troop 163 have put up two displays calling attention to the present annual Boy Scout Week, it was announced this week.

The Flaming Arrow Patrol has constructed a display in a store window in the University Heights shopping center area and the Cherokee patrol has assembled one at a store in the Stanford shopping center.

Gary Ott and Dick Hanson are the leaders of the patrols, respectively; Howard Berry is Scoutmaster for the troop, which serves the University Heoghts-Ladera area.

Research Unit Changes Name

United Research Corporation of Menlo Park has changed its name to United Technology Corporation, according to an announcement today by Lt. General Donald L. Putt, USAF (ret.), president.

The action was taken at a board of directors meeting held in East Hartford, Conn., Jan. 19, at the headquarters of the company's parent corporation, United Aircraft.

Gen. Putt said the name change was made primarily because the word technology describes in a much more definitive manner the work and scope of activities the company is undertaking.

Fire Damages Atherton Home

Firemen estimate that $30 damage was done last Thursday afternoon to the James Casper residence at 89 Park drive, when escaping gas was ignited by an electric oven.

The fire got started when a repairman attempted to cap a gas pipe in the home's kitchen without first shutting off the gas outside the house.

Firehouse Site Price Firmed

Menlo Park Fire District this week got a firm commitment on the price of a fire station site in the Sharon Heights area.

A letter, signed by Duncan MacDonald of the Sharon Heights Development Corporation, said that the land will cost the district $16,500 an acre —no more.

But, the letter went on to say, no location for a future firehouse in the Sharon Heights area can be pinpointed at this time, because actual size and access characteristics of Sand Hill road have not been pinpointed by the state.

District Chief George Carter said the state probably won't make its plans for the thoroughfare known for about a year yet.

Construction Jobs 'Bogged'

"You might say that our construction jobs have bogged down."

This was School District Business Manager John Richerts' evaluation of the effects of recent heavy rains on construction at the Laurel School site, Fremont School and at Oak Knoll School.

The school district has building projects of more than $500,000 in progress at the three locations.

Richert said he was sure contractors on the three jobs would ask extensions of time, to make up that lost during the last two weeks. He added, however, that it's still expected all the builing jobs will be completed early next summer, so the structures involved will be ready for occupancy next fall.

Under construction are a complete Laurel school, a science room-music room-library at Oak Knoll and a multi-use room at Fremont School.

CONTRACT LET

A $3,800 contract with Michie City Publications of Los Angeles for codification of Menlo Park ordinances, recommended by City Attorney James O'Keefe, was approved by the City Council Tuesday night.

Ladera Pupils Hear Author

Pupils at Ladera School Tuesday attended assemblies to hear Taro Yashima, children's book author and illustrator, tell of his activities in those fields.

The appearance was sponsored by the school's PTA, as part of the school's "Valentine Book Party" designed to aid in collecting books for the school's library.

Yashima, a native of southern Japan, studied art in Tokyo and has had many exhibitions in various art galleries, including New York. He is known in his native country as a cartoonist ,illustrator and painter, and has also done illustrations for magazines in the United States.

Professorship Honors A. Poniatoff

Establishment of an endowed Stanford University professorship, the Alexander M. Poniatoff chair of engineering and applied science, was announced this week by President Wallace Sterling.

The funds for the new faculty position come from Ampex Corporation through an Ampex Foundation grant honoring the corporation's founder and chairman of the board.

The endowment is payable to the University at $17,500 per year for the next 10 years.

Under the terms of the grant, Stanford is to select a new and distinguished educator to hold the Poniatoff professorship.

Poniatoff, Ampex's colorful founder, was born in Kazan, Russia, and educated at the University of Kazan, the Imperial College of Moscow, and the Karlsruhe Technical College in Germany.

He was a Russian Navy pilot in World War I and a White Russian pilot during the Revolution. In 1920 he escaped to Shanghai, where he lived until he was able to come to San Francisco in 1927.

He worked as a development engineer for General Electric Co., and later for Dalmo Victor, founding Ampex in 1944 —named for his initials, AMP, and "ex" for excellence of product.

WHAT'S DOING

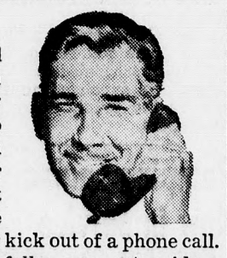

R. R. Maloney, your Telephone Manager for Menlo Park

Safety's always in style at the telephone company. And though telephone man Don McDaniels may not look it, he's dressed for safety from the top of his hardhat to his climbing boots. Those glasses aren't to correct his eyesight, they're strictly for protection. So are the gloves, safety belt, and other equipment he carries. The special safety devices Don and other phone men have for each job pays off for them and their families, of course. Pays off for you, too, because safe jobs are good jobs—and good jobs attract the capable men like Don McDaniels who keep your service working right.

If you were to guess what is being held in this hand, what would you say it is? A new kind of paper clip? A hairpin? Actually, it's a thermistor, and I'm told it is one of the most sensitive temperature measuring devices known to science. Thermistors first saw the light of day back in the 1930's at the Bell Telephone Laboratories. And they are used by the millions in the telephone business as automatic volume regulators for your telephone service. Recently, thermistors have been carried in satellites and used by medical scientists to take temperatures inside human hearts. Proves that not all space-age ideas are new ones and, when you read about thermistors, you realize how many different ways telephone science works for all of us.*

When was the last time you had a phone visit with an out-of-town relative or friend? And how many times have you meant to write, but just never got around to it! Well, nothing's easier than picking up the phone right now and catching up on all the news. I'll bet you'll both get a big kick out of a phone call.

Some folks even set aside a certain night every week or so just for a phone visit. That way their call is expected and they can save on the even lower station-to-station rates after 6 p.m. Pacific Telephone

A special service for the BETTER HALF

Many men would like their wives to have at least a working knowledge of the family's investments. The practical side of this viewpoint is attested by the fact that today women control well over half the nation's wealth ... and outnumber the men on the stockholder lists of many large companies.

If you would encourage your wife in a better grasp of investment, we urge you to let us arrange a "briefing" for her on the whys and wherefores of informed ownership of securities at no obligation to you or to her.

And we invite you to stop in, too, and have a critical look at the professional aid we are equipped to give those seeking greater income.

Annex Election Delays Rezoning

The impending Menlo Park annexation election in the O'Connor avenue area has delayed County Planning Commission consideration of rezoning a lot, sought by F. Bauder, from single family to multiple family residential.

The lot is a part of the area which will be the object of the annexation election later this spring.

County Planning Commission action was to hold up decision for 60 days until April 27.

Search Starts For Health Center Site

Search for possible sites for a south county branch of the County Health Department began this week by the County Planning Commission staff.

The Commission last week was asked by County Manager Robert Stallings to investigate and report back on the project.

Larz T. Anderson of the planning staff said the site should be central to the two areas which provide the department's major work load in the south county. This would mean Redwood City, East Palo Alto, or points between.

TWO-ACRE PLOTS

Anderson said the planning staff will consider two-acre plots with room for parking and located, if possible, near public transit lines. He invited persons with land of the appropriate size and location to contact his office.

The county presently rents offices on Bradford street in Redwood City.

The County Health Department serves cities as well as the unincorporated area.

Research Institute Volume Soars to 22 Million Dollars

Stanford Research Institute reported a volume of more than $22 million in contract research during the past year as compared with an $18 million volume in 1958. These figures were contained in the Institute's report of operations released last week.

About two-thirdd of this research was performed under government sponsorship; the remainder was financed by business, industry, foundations and individuals.

In transmitting the report to the board of directors, E. Finley Carter, president of the non-profit research center, discussed the impact of technology on international developments, and urged the positive application of science to world problems.

"The quest for answers . . . leads to many areas of research," Carter stated. "Among them are world relationships in trade ,production, communications, arms control, food supplies, disease, poverty, population, living standards, and human understanding. There are many more. The oceans, polar regions, the atmosphere, and space are involved.

"The Institute's work during 1959 continued to focus on research in the public service. The national interest requires a conscious channeling of scientific endeavor in directions most likely to promote peace and international understanding."

Some of the Institute's research activities during 1959 are disucssed in the report.

To gain knowledge of the earth's atmosphere and beyond, the Engineering Division began construction of three large radar antennas. A 150-foot parabolic radar telescope is underway on the Stanford University campus.

In the field of high frequency radio communications, SRI investigated the reflection of radio waves from the earth's surface. Determinations of the reflective quality of various terrains required extensive flight tests over much of the West, the Pacific Ocean, and the ice cap north of Point Barrow, Alaska.

FOR THE LAUNDRY

A laundry automation program brought about new techniques for commercial laundering. Using a system developed at the Institute, cleaning and drying of "flatwork" is possible in a fraction of a second without damage to the material.

The year also brought new research in the field of propulsion. In addition to the propellant reliability program of the Physical and Biological Sciences Division, the Institute's Poulter Laboratories began research on fuels and propulsion schemes for space vehicles. Initial emphasis is on development of new high-energy solid propellants.

The Poulter Laboratories also initiated research on new applications of explosives, using them for forming metal shapes, for deep-hardening of materials, and for welding dissimilar metals.

High temperature metals have important applications in jet engines and in the skins of missiles and supersonic aircraft. In the Physical and Biological Sciences Division, metallurgists using new refractory alloys of columbium and tantalum pushed the possible working temperatures of ductile metallic materials beyond the previous limit of 1900 degrees F.

Additionally, the Division made contributions in the field of semi-conductors. A method has been developed for producing silicon carbide crystals for use at temperatures in the 1800-degree range, a fourfold improvement over materials presently in use.

The Institute's biological sciences department is giving increased attention to identifying and studying cancer-producing viruses.

STUDY DRUGS

A psychopharmacology team was formed during 1959 to study drugs such as tranquilizers and stimulants that act on the central nervous system. Its members represent five disciplines—pharmacology, psychology, neuro-chemistry, neurophysiology, and medicine.

The Economics Division published its initial study in the Corporate Earnings Research Series. The study, "The U.S. Chemical Industry: Its Comparative Earnings Performance," provides financial yardsticks that measure comparative earnings, sales, and other key factors in the performance of 150 companies and 33 industries over a 25-year period.

A study of the impact of possible non-military scientific and technological developments on foreign policy was completed during the year. The report was made for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Anticipation of future growth was evidenced by development of a master plan for Stanford Village—the 85-acre site on which SRI is located. Ground was broken in the fall for a second unit in the Institute's permanent building program. When completed in 1961 the 150,000 square-foot structure will house several research groups in engineering, the physical sciences, and economics.

The Institute staff at year end was about 1700, not including consultants and temporary employees. Of this group more than 1600 are headquartered at Menlo Park.

Menlo Park Coed On Relic Search

Miss Gael Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Young of 1361 North Lemon avenue, Menlo Park, a freshman at the University of California at Santa Barbara, was employed between semester as a member of a UCLA archaeological team working on an ancient Indian site near the university's seashore campus.

Among other relics, traced back to the Chumash Indians who inhabited the land about 1000 years ago, the archaeologists found minute microdrills which were obviously used by these proto-historic Indians to carve out thousands of tiny shell beads worn for ornamental purposes.

Miss Young was one of 22 students at the University of California, Santa Barbara interested in this area of study who assisted the professional archaeologists.

Two from Menlo On 'Daily' Staff

Two Menlo Park students have been elected to positions on the staff of the Stanford Daily, it was announced this week in the wake of semi-annual elections.

The two are John E. Denham, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Denham of 1725 Bay Laurel drive, who will serve as a photographer, and Barbara J. Coffin, niece of John M. Coffin of 10 Reyna place, who will serve as wire editor.

The two will serve on the staff from this month through June.

Annexation Election Set

Date of the Byers drive-Falk court annexation election was set by City Councilmen Tuesday night as Tuesday, April 19, and they designated the William T. Bopp residence at 1977 Byers drive as the polling place.

Officials named to man the polls in the Bopp garage were Mrs. Helen A. Funge, 1984 Byers drive, inspector; Mrs. Donna C. Stott, 430 O'Connor street, judge, and Mrs. Laura J. Fuchs, 445 Falk court, and Mrs. Madeline M. Bopp, clerks.

Extensive Damage:

Break in Water Pipe Delays Use Of New School 'Ad' Building

Failure of a water pipe in the ceiling of the Menlo Park School District's new headquarters building facing Glenwood avenue will probably delay occupancy of the building until about March 1, District Business Manager John E. Richert said this week.

He added that damage caused by the water—which apparently flowed all night long before being discovered last Thursday morning—woud probably run into "several thousand dollars."

He added, however, that cost of repairs would probably be borne by insurance, since the failure took place before the contractor's warranty on workmanship seems to have expired, even though the building had been inspected by the district.

Richert said that the damage was caused because of improper brazing of a joint in copper pipe.

He said that because it resulted in a flood which was general throughout the building, removal of all floor tiles might be necessary.

Luckily, Richert said, most instructional materials hadn't been moved in. There was "several hundred dollars" damage done to instructional materials but the loss would have been much greater had there been books stacked around on the floor.

Had the district's professional library been moved in, he said, the damage would have been much greater.

When contract for the building was let, it had been specified that the new building would be ready for occupancy by Jan. 16, since the district had agreed to vacate its offices at Central school by that date. The old Central school buildings at 1300 El Camino Real were sold last year to the Claude T. Lindsay Co.

Police Seize Quartet For Bus Theft

Four young men who thought it might be fun to steal a bus were thinking it over yesterday, after being arrested here early yesterday. The four—and the stolen bus—were seized by Menlo Park police a short five minutes after Palo Alto police reported the vehicle missing from its garage at Charleston road and El Camino Real in that city.

The bus, owned by the Barrett Stage Co., was spotted by officers John Lyle and Laughlin Currell, on Willow road at O'Brien drive, at 12:30 a.m.

The officers said a man identified as Kenneth S. Papacosta, 21, was driving and that his passengers included George I. Speer, 19, of East Palo Alto, Bernard S. Duarter, 23, of Mountain View and Roger Arens, 19, of Palo Alto.

The four were turned over to Palo Alto police and the bus was released to an authorized driver for the Barret company, after one was located.

The bus, police said, was worth about $10,000.

Carol Cornelius, Woodside-Atherton 4-H member, has been named one of two selected as San Mateo County 1959 All-Stars. The two will represent the county at the All-Star Conference to be held in April at the University of California campus in Berkeley.

Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cornelius of 381 Santa Margarita, Menlo Park, has been a 4-H member eight years. Her projects in home economics have included clothing, food preparation, food preservation, and home improvement.

Besides the projects, Carol has participated in the county and state dress revue; local, regional and state demonstrations, and has exhibited her projects at the county and state fairs. She has been an active member of the Woodside-Athedton 4-H club, at the present time serving as president.

As We See It:

County Help Not in Sight For Covering Open Drains

A week and a half ago, the life of a three-year-old boy was lost in an open drainage ditch north of Atherton.

Since then, one south county resident has filed for election to the county board of supervisors, on the basis that he thinks something should be done about the ditch. There have also been several other excursions and alarms and requests for action.

From the county courthouse comes only the standard word: If the ditch is to be covered, the work must be financed by a drainage district.

"Yes," say the boys at the courthouse, "something ought to be done. But it's a local problem and neighborhood residents will have to pay the cost of properly handling their own storm run-off water, if it's going to be done at all."

Meanwhile, of course, considerable money has already been spent because of the problem caused by the open — and dangerous — Stockbridge avenue drain. The money wasn't spent usefully, either.

We refer to the day after the tragedy, when the county manager, county sheriff and a member of the county board of supervisors — all of whom collect five-figure incomes — managed to break away from the important jobs they're paid to do, and junket down to the scene of the drowning. Whether or not their sojourn resulted in any useful thinking is arguable; the point is, the day's wages of these functionaries and the others who accompanied them might be better spent, if put in a fund for financing some work on the drains.

At the risk of being labelled cynical, we'd like to point out that, county government or no county government, people still have to pay for the solving of their own neighborhood problems.

The only thing the county will do is to administer the funds and this county officials will do, gladly. And they'll even calculate the cost of the pencils used to figure up the bills, and add that into the total cost of doing the job.

Placement Officers' Tour Will Help Teacher Hiring

Today, a group composed of 14 placement officers from various colleges and universities are to tour the Menlo Park Elementary school district, to get a first-hand look at one of the more attractive districts in which some of their clients can hope for jobs.

They'll take this information back to their home offices with them and, it's hoped, use it wisely, passing it along only to those prospective teachers who will contribute something to teaching here.

It may come as a surprise to most residents — many of whom have taken education as it's purveyed here for granted — that the Menlo Park Elementary School District is famed pretty far afield.

During the current season, for instance, the superintendent is receiving applications for employment from distant localities such as Massachusetts and New York.

One now-experienced primary grade teacher in the district recalls that, in her innocence as a recent graduate of a teachers' college, she years ago contacted the U.S. department of health, education and welfare in Washington, to find out where she should seek a job. And even in the normally remote halls of the federal agency in the capital, the name and fame of the local school agency was known.

That the Menlo Park Elementary School District doesn't stand alone as a good one in which teachers can work or children can be educated is pretty self-evident. All south county districts can, and do, attract and keep good teachers.

Today's tour by the placement officers should be a step in spreading the word about the area's advantages a little farther. And it should, in time, pay dividends both to those ultimately to come to work here, and to the community as a whole.

Inter-Service Club Council Aids Community, Organizations

Creation of an "Inter-Service Club Council" in Menlo Park should be greeted by club members and members of the community in general with appropriate needs of approval.

For club members, it means fewer program conflicts, fewer "community-wide events" planned for the same weekend or the same month, and more opportunities for each club's members to give at least the service of cooperation to organizations other than their own.

To the community as a whole, it promises a year-round program of service projects and the opportunity to participate in a relatively well-organized "do-good" projects, rather than to see them stacked up at any particular season of the year.

The advantages can be achieved without any loss of a single bit of any club's individuality or independence and this, above all other things, makes the council well worth while.

TELLS US:

The Menlo Park Sanitary District's sewage treatment plant has a mascot.

The treatment plan has been "adopted" as the home of Jake, a medium colored, medium sized sort of a seagull who eschews the more sociable location of the nearby garbage district incinerator, which is favored by most of the area's gulls.

Jake, observers declare, presides over a bunch of machinery known as the inlet mechanism and has such a proprietary feeling about it that he actually drives off other gulls.

In preserving his exclusiveness, he sometimes uses a variety of gull language which sounds pretty much like profanity, observers say. His vocal chastisement of other gulls is really something to hear.

* * *

Some excellent fireplace logs are lying around the Edge road site of the new Laurel school but in spite of the fact that they're presently on public property, the school district doesn't own them.

The contractor who is building the school is the true proprietor.

This is so, School District Business Manager John Richert said this week, because the contract called for "clearing the ground" in preparation for building. Thus the contractor, according to a strict interpretation, has the obligation of getting rid of the wood.

Several oaks and other trees had to be sawed down to make room for the school, which is now a-building.

* * *

A couple of weekends ago some of the "high livers" at Stanford unveiled a new scheme for prowling the saloons in a manner not objectionable to the police.

They hired a moving van.

The driver, presumably, maintained proper decorum while about a dozen couples were transported from place to place in the back of the vehicle.

* * *

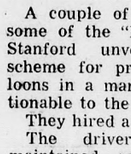

Functionaries at city hall last week indulged in a few raised eyebrows and "I-told-you-so" expressions, after hearing of the discomfiture of the Menlo Park School District which came after a water pipe burst in their new administration building facing Glenwood avenue.

This was because the city building inspector hadn't been called in to keep an eye on the progress of the job.

Being another taxing agency, the school district doesn't have to get a city building permit, if its administrators don't want to.

IN BATTLE

Walter the Weathermouse, with bags under his eyes, blundered half-way through the door, stopped, turned around and opened it, and came in again to deliver his weather report and a running account of his latest heavyweight title fight with his wife.

"What did she accuse you of this time?" we asked.

"She screamed through a hail of dishes that I spent too much money. She called me a high liver."

"And what did you say back to her?"

"I told her that I was not a high liver; my liver is no higher than anyone else's."

Municipal Report:

City May Have Lots of Money —But It Has Hardly Any Cash

In the preface to a recent issue of the quarterly Stanford Research Institute "Journal," William J. Platt of Atherton pointed out that, in some cases, the business of budgeting expenditures for a year at a time was probably bad economy and possibly unrealistic in the cases of some national defense projects.

The theme of the particular "Journal" issue in question was the "spectrum of conflict" between Russia and the United States and in this global arena, the effects of "annual budgeting" as compared to "five-year plans" becomes fairly apparent.

It takes a little more particularizing to bring the message closer to home.

On the local level, for instance, it can be speculated that the process of budgeting street projects a year at a time is demonstrably silly and uneconomical.

Every year, the same thing happens: The budget is adopted in June and projects are set up for the succeeding twelve-month, from from July 1 to July 1; it takes several weeks for plans to be drawn, a few more for bids to be called, a couple of more weeks for "contingencies" and for the contractor to get on the job.

The result is that no job authorized in midsummer can even be started until about two or three weeks before rain can be expected; many outdoor projects are therefore delayed and conceivably might have to be done—in effect—twice; it depends on how much base-rock sinks out of sight and how many grades sag during the rains.

Since all tax-supported agencies adopt new budgets at exactly the same time and "open" and "close" their books on the same date, they wind up competing with each other for the services of the same contractors at exactly the same time. This cannot be expected to militate in favor of the taxpayers as regarding "good bids."

The price paid for flattering the egos of the bookkeepers is way out of line.

Another point at which the "budget a year at a time, no matter what" philosophy hurts is when it comes to financing major projects.

For instance, the city of Menlo Park for the past several years has been talking of developing a park in the Belle Haven area. It got money to buy seven and a half acres of land through a bond issue, bought the land, and since has installed turf and baseball backstops.

That's all that can be done at present; the city council can't see where it's going to get more than $25,000 in a lump sum, to start construction, in any given year—and it might not have that.

With such a relatively low ceiling on expenditures and an over-all development plan that calls for the spending of possibly more than $100,000 for a gymnasium and a swimming pool, it's easy to see where both the city's recreation commission and council get cautious when deciding where to assign this year's trifle—even though they know lots more will have to be spent sooner or later.

If they could plan ahead enough to be able to say, "okay, we'll spend this year's $25,000 starting in May, and hook it to next year's $25,000 so we can get $50,000 worth of work done in a single contract," they'd be better off.

But about the time anybody raises this rather reasonable suggestion, a legalist will rise to point out that commitment of expected future funds is illegal.

The result is that city building projects are largely hamstrung by two procedural considerations both of which might be archaic: You can't budget for more than a year in advance and that year must start on July 1 and if you plan a project which costs more than is available in one year, you're committing future income."

An alternative would be to "bank" money in various reserves, so that at the end of two or three years a "surplus" would be available and a major building project could be undertaken.

Unfortunately, reserves are vulnerable to just about every kind of a raid that can be conceived ,if they're just generally titled "reserves." And if they're put away and earmarked for some particular use, it becomes an object of scorn or criticism on the part of all others who have pet projects, plus those who want the total tax rate reduced.

The only defense a tax-supported agency has to these accusations is to spend every penny it can get its hands on, every year, turning in its pockets inside out each June and pleading for more money.

It doesn't make much sense, but that's the way it's always been done and that's why the government of a city like Menlo Park, with 25,000 inhabitants, can't get the price of a middle-class three-bedroom dwelling together at any time for any reason.

Mumps Topped Disease List For December

The number of mumps cases swelled in the unincorporated area around Menlo Park in December to gain recognition of a sort as the disease of the month.

The San Mateo County public health division bulletin for December showed 16 reported cases of mumps in the area, with four cases of the disease reported in Atherton and three in Menlo Park.

Also reported for the unincorporated area: One case each of chicken pox, german measles, gonorrhea and four each of streptococcus infections and one syphilis.

Mumps cases throughout the county, including 36 in San Carlos, totalled 90 for the month, way above the total of 16 in December 1958 and well over the five-year average of 35 cases for the same period.

The students were able to observe a storm detecting radar in operation, the testing of a jet engine, the overhauling of piston aircraft, and a new DC-8 being modified. The members also listened to operators in communication with planes in flight over parts of the West Coast.

Participating in the tour were Douglas Aarons, Ralph Todd, Timothy Healey, Randall Burke, Phillip Stewart, Robert Dompe, Evan Rischpater and William Rischpater.

County Comment:

'Lost Surveys' a Major Cost In Government Spending

By FLOYD F. McCUE
Editor and Publisher, Redwood City Star-Advertiser

Every time we report the meetings of our taxing agencies we come upon the subject of surveys. A few thousand to hire "experts" to find out where a ditch should go or, as in the case of the Bay Area Transit District, the study costs run into the millions. The latest is $40,000 to find out how to finance the $500 million program. And here all the time we thought it was the poor taxpayers who had to share the burden—and it probably will be yet.

San Mateo county "loaned" the transit district $60,000 to finance a survey of the grade crossing separations for the Peninsula. Everyone thought that this would be a major problem in the original district planning. The talk is to use the Southern Pacific right-of-way for much of the distance and we already know what grade crossings we have. Naturally many will have to be closed, regardless of the type of transit system. The county will get its loan back next year when the district prepares its 1961 budget.

But by that time there may be no rapid transit district. If the voters turn down the proposal, as we think they will, then will the county be stuck?

Probably not, they will figure some way to go at the problem again and will have another levy to make next year. This county pays approximately one-tenth of the total district budget, or about a quarter million dollars. This is for planning only, you understand, and future taxes would have to be levied to meet any deficits of operating revenue failing to meet the bond and maintenance costs.

There's quite a pressure war being waged to get Santa Clara county to come into the transit district. Present plans call for speed trains to run as far south as Mountain View. The Southern Pacific says if rapid transit becomes a reality it will discontinue all commute trains now originating in San Jose.

This would work a hardship on many people who commute by train from that area. Too, San Mateo county officials do not feel it would be right to have the rail system extend beyond the south county line unless Santa Clara county comes in and contributes its just share.

The proposal now is to include the area of Santa Clara county from San Jose north, but apparently the board of supervisors in that county is not too agreeable. Just a thought, but maybe San Mateo county should pull out, too.

The transit plan is expected to go on the ballot next November, but the cost figure is far from established. San Francisco has come up with a new plan for many more stations which, it is said, could add $250,000,000 to the over-all costs.

Other counties undoubtedly will be asking for more and more as the plans are developed so no telling where the final total will reach. Even at $500 million, San Mateo county would be stuck for paying off about $50 million over the years. This on top of property taxes or a sale tax levy to help meet operating costs.

Going back to the crossing survey being made by the transit people, it certainly griped us to find that Redwood City plunked out $5800 for a "study" to find out which was the best crossing possibility—Whipple or Brewster avenue.

And who is making the study? The same people that are studying grade crossings for the transit district. The county, cities, or schools think nothing of ordering costly surveys. Only recently the Sequoa Union School District hired a new engineer and before he could get his feet comfortably settled under his desk, he needed a highly-paid assistant.

Last week the head engineer brought in some rusted pipes to show that the Sequoia High heating system needed some working over. Could the engineer give the answer? No, the board hired outside experts to make a "study." We realize these items may be chicken-feed in the over-all budget, but it would seems that with all the highly paid engineers and planners we have on the public payroll they would be able to give some of this "expert" advice themselves.

It's a horrible lesson that people had to learn about the need for flood control and creek covering in the area.

The death of a three-year-old Atherton youngster and the narrow escape of his mother in the swirling waters of an open ditch in Atherton should help to speed study of flood control measures.

Nothing looks more appetizing to a youngster than running water and until the creeks are covered we will continue to read of these accidents. Certainly it's a high price to pay.

Flood control problems are major in size and cost but the lesson we have learned in this youngster's death may alert all citizens to get behind corrective measures as quickly as possible. Let's hope so.

LAUDS STAND

Editor, the Recorder:

It is inspiring to read your fine editorial in the January 28th edition of the Menlo Park Recorder entitled: "As We See It: Application, Not Violation of Freedom."

You have brought out, clearly and eloquently, how important it is for us to keep our thinking straight.

To use the Constitution of the United States to stop the people of Menlo Park erecting a Creche on City Property is to make a travesty of the spirit in which it was written.

This is, and was always intended to be, a Christian Nation.

The men who conceived the Constitution were believing Christians. They took great care to protect the citizens of the United States from religious persecution, and to ensure their right to worship God in any way they choose. Nothing, however, can have been further from their thoughts than the idea that the Constitution would ever be twisted to prevent us from commemorating the Nativity of Christ!

Yours sincerely,
Doanda Putnam Wheeler

Last week Miss Simpson spoke in San Diego at a meeting of the Historical Society there. She has been active in supporting and assisting with the annual Conference of California Historical Societies. Last June she appeared on a panel at the Conference held in San Mateo with George Pfeiffer III, manager of Lane Publishing company (Sunset Magazine).

Through Miss Simpson, the city of Menlo Park has benefited from the Wells Fargo collection, parts of which have been loaned and spotlighted in special displays during "Nabob Days" celebrations. On display during February in the library are pictures of "Old Menlo" on loan from Wells Fargo.

Following the meeting a coffee hour will be held. Mrs. Henry Artru, president of the Business and Professional Women's club, is in charge of arrangements.

4 Local Scouts Get Awards At S. F. Rites

Four members of Menlo Park's Boy Scout Troop 139, sponsored by St. Raymond's church, received the Ad Altare Dei award at solemn ceremonies at St. Mary's Cathedral, San Francisco, last Sunday afternoon.

The Most Rev. Hugh A. Donohoe, Auxiliary Archbishop of San Francisco, conferred the awards on Scouts Keith Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm K. Collins; Patrick Pulis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Pulis; Steven Tipton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Tipton, and Gregg Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hal R. Williams, all of Menlo Park. The ceremony immediately followed the Scout Sunday parade of Catholic Scouts from 13 bay area counties.

The Right Rev. Monsignor Edwin J. Kennedy, pastor of St. Raymond's and an enthusiastic supporter of Scouting, was the principal speaker. A total of 100 awards were made this year, all counties included.

The Ad Altare Dei Award is earned by Catholic Boy Scouts and Explorers who satisfy an exacting set of requirements in day-to-day citizenship, exemplary moral behavior, command of Christian principles, and service to God, Country, and the community through the church.

SRI Issues New Publication

(SRI) — Publication of "Small Industry Advisory Services — An International Study" was announced this week by the International Industrial Development Center at Stanford Research Institute.

The study, which is the second in the IIDC Small Industry Series, examines the application of technical knowledge to establish and upgrade traditional small industry in newly-developing countries.

Though designed primarily for economic program planners and administrators, the information will also interest those in government, industry, and education concerned with the process of economic growth and development.

Prepared by SRI senior industries specialist, Dr. Joseph E. Stepanek, the 193-page book is based on his many years of experience in industrial advisory capacities with the United Nations, the U.S. government, and the Institute.

Local Men Attend Meet In Sacramento

Kenneth S. Thomson and Dr. Hiram Mears, elders of the Menlo Park Presbyterian Church, who have been selected as discussion leaders, will attend the seventh Western Area meeting of the National Council of United Presbyterian Men in Sacramento, Feb. 19, 20 and 21. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Senator.

The Sacramento meeting of United Presbyterian Men is the second of five major meetings now held annually by the organization in February and March. Others are scheduled for New York, Pittsburgh, Wichita and Chicago. Several thousand men are expected to attend each meeting. There are some 400,000 men who participate in this laymen's movement of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

The theme of this year's meeting is "Count Me Therefore a Partner."

Both Thomson and Mears are former presidents of the Menlo Park chapter of United Presbyterian Men and Thomson is treasurer of the California Synod Council.

Reason for Enrollment:

Scheduling Problems, Grades, Factors in Summer Schools

A total of 883 students attended summer school at Menlo-Atherton High School last summer and apparently most of them took courses either in raise a grade or because of scheduling problems during the regular school year.

This was indicated recently in a report on the summer school activities submitted by Alan Bostwick, who headed it at four schools of the district. Classes were held from June 22 to Aug. 14.

Actually, statistics were worked out on the basis of the district as a whole; for it, 2656 attendances were reported at the four schools open: Carlmont, Menlo-Atherton, Sequoia and Woodside.

Those who attended the school to either raise a passing grade or make up a failing grade comprised 31 per cent of those enrolled, Bostwick said. Thirty and two-tenths per cent of those enrolled did so to overcome scheduling problems or because they wanted to take an additional course during the school year.

Nine and eight-tenths per cent of those attending the school did so to earn additional elective course units in order to graduate, and 7.9 per cent of those in the schools were there for "summer recreation."

The interest survey also pointed out that seven per cent of those attending the session did so because they wanted to increase their general knowledge.

Nearly one-third of those attending the summer session—32.5 per cent — were eighth graders and the most popular course given was beginning typing, a course taken by 596 students at the four schools.

Four hundred and ninety-six students took beginning algebra; 205 students took biology and 207 took chemistry, among other popular courses.

More students — 194 — took driver training than took beginning high school English: 192.

NAMED TO BOARD

Dr. Frank Novak of Menlo Park, president-elect of the San Mateo County Medical Society, was named to the board of trustees o fthe Peninsula Memorial Blood Bank at the latter group's recent annual meeting.

Council Gets Support on Plan

Menlo Park City Councilmen learned Tuesday night that their original desires for a true intersection at O'Keefe street and Menalto avenue when O'Keefe is extended have also been expressed by the county.

Councilmen had wanted the new O'Keefe link, which begins in Menlo Park territory and extends through unincorporated area to Euclid avenue, to connect directly with the present O'Keefe street at Menalto. But they had agreed to a modification sought by the planners of the street improvement district because of property acquisition problems.

Tuesday night, they learned the county planning commission also favored an intersection that wouldn't jog across Menalto. The council indicated they would support the county position which had been theirs in the first place.

Owners of deep lots which the roadway would bisect had joined together in forming the district so that their unused land could be developed.

MEET SCHEDULED

Parent-Teacher league of the Bethany Lutheran Church will meet April 24, at the church parish hall at Avy and Cloud avenues.

TEACHERS ASK SALARY BOOSTS

A revised salary schedule, calling for boosts of $300 to $400 per year for all teachers, was proposed to the Ravenswood City School District by members of the district teachers' association salary committee Monday night.

The new range they seek is from $4,700 minimum for first year teachers with BA degree up to $8,450 for a teacher with 13 years experience, a Master's degree and 15 semester units.

This contrasts with last year's schedule of $4,400 to $8,000.

The board took the requests under consideration and will talk them over at a Monday, Feb. 15, study meeting.

Hardware Men To Attend Meet

Two Menlo Park hardware dealers will be among delegates to the 59th annual convention and hardware-housewares show to be presented by the California Retail Hardware Association in San Francisco Feb. 14-16.

The two are J. W. Ryan of the Menlo Park Hardware Co. and C. F. Childers of the Sturz-Kaiser hardware company.

Area Problems Topic of Panel

The social problems of the Menlo Park-East Palo Alto area are to be aired tonight at a panel discussion meeting to be held at the Menlo Park Presbyterian Church.

Sponsored by the Community Life Forum, the meeting will convene at 7:45 p.m.; the public is invited to attend.

City and county officials as well as officials of Ravenswood High School will serve on the panel, which will be moderated by W. Harwood Huffcutt, chairman of the social education and action committee of the forum organization.

Panelists will first attempt to identify area social problems and the extent to which they exist. These might include such things as juvenile and adult delinquency, discrimination against minorities and the problems of education, recreation and public health.

Possible solutions to these problems—if they exist—and possible future approaches to them will also be discussed.

Panel members are to include City Manager John R. Johnson, Councilman Guy E. Plaisted, Police Inspector William Kieler, of Menlo Park; Wilton P. Dodd, president of the East Palo Alto Chamber of Commerce; Mal Taylor, vice principal of Ravenswood High School.

Wesley A. Pomeroy, chief deputy of San Mateo County's sheriff's office; Frances West, past vice president of the Belle Haven Improvement Association and Huffcut.

AT FORT ORD

FORT ORD (Special)—Army Private Gary L. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Clark of 530 Oak Grove avenue, is undergoing the first cycle of basic infantry training here. He has been assigned to Company D, third brigade.

'Curriculum' Topic of Meet

Arnim Weems, elementary school curriculum director for the San Mateo county schools department, Monday night addressed members of the School Club of Bethany Lutheran Church, meeting at the parish hall at Avy and Cloud avenues.

Weems discussed "Curriculum in the Public Schools," discussing new trends and experiences which have shown modifications to be necessary.

He was introduced by Orville Iverson, moderator the club.

End Coming Near For SPAL Contenders

Ah so, here we are, coming to another crossroads in the South Peninsula Athletic League varsity basketball race. The Menlo-Atherton Bears and the Palo Alto Vikings, both unusually adept groups of unusually large high school boys, are getting set to lock horns Tuesday in Paly's gym in what amounts to a do-or-die situation for them both.

They're not exactly tied for the league lead right now. Paly took a half-game bulge Tuesday by mauling Ravenswood 69-23 while the Bears were down at Los Gatos giving the southerners hail Columbia in a nonleague scrap 66-40.

All this going on Tuesday will come about if the Bears can get around the Cubberley Cougars this afternoon down on Cubberley's home court, a den proven to be a deadly place for Cougar opponents.

If the Bruins do, and coach Bill Loftus is the picture of optimism this week, then the stage is set for the make-or-break titanic.

It won't be easy, though. Loftus said this week that he fears Cubberley more than Paly because of their miserly defense—one that allowed an average of only 31.8 points per opponent through last week's games.

"But Cubberley isn't the hottest shooting club around," he added. "We're looking for a zone defense against us, but we'll be prepared for them."

The Bears nipped the Cougars 44-43 at M-A last month, so they know it can be done.

If coach Bud Presley's Cougars are to do anything about the Bear offense, it'll have to be plenty effective. The M-A's are riding the crest of a five-game win streak, including such feats as a 76-39 victory over Sequoia, a 60-23 wrecking of Ravenswood and Tuesday's aforementioned 66-40 no-counter at Los Gatos.

Senior forward Rick Wright was largely responsible for that one, hitting his career high of 28 points, 22 of them in the first half when he plopped through nine of 10 field goal attempts and four-for-six free throw tries.

Defensively, Loftus was very pleased with Wright and guard John Christenson. Wright held Phil Wanless, the Bearcats' second-highest season scorer, to eight markers and Christenson kept leading pointer 6'3 John Mercer to nine. This was Christenson's second fine defensive effort of the week. Friday, he held high-scoring Joe Lopez of Woodside without a field goal. Loftus said the two Los Gatans scored mostly when Wright and Christenson were on the bench.

M-A hit 42.9 per cent (27x63) of their floor shots game-wise, including a sizzling 17x30 in the opening half. The Bearcats, getting off only 38 shots, connecting on 15 of them for a 39.5 average.

With Wright at the trigger, the Bears clambered to a 40-25 lead at the half, then eased off offensively. The defense took no vacation, however, as coach Fred Nieman's Bearcats collected only 15 counters in the entire second chapter.

Six-two sophomore Bill Wright did another good job off the backboards, snatching five rebounds from the taller Bearcats during his tour of duty in the second half.

Wildcats, Too

Although three of them fouled out doing it, an inspired bunch of never-say-die Woodside Wildcats pushed the league-leading Bears to the wall before bowing to M-A's superior height and rejuvenated shooting prowess 54-42, at M-A's gym Friday.

This was a far superior effort to the earlier 66-44 loss to the Bears, but coach Bill Guttormsen's Cats just didn't have the horses against the big and vastly more experienced Bruins.

Bear coach Bill Loftus cleared his bench in the second quarter and the reserves came through with a good show, staking the home club to a 23-12 halftime lead and showing they can be plenty tough. Especially outstanding was sophomore Bill Wright, Rick Wright's younger brother who, although he didn't score, was a tiger defensively, grabbing seven of M-A's 22 rebounds in the first half.

Loftus' troops almost came to grief in the third quarter trying to contain the hot-running Cats. Their own shooting went sour while, with Dick Burke, Paul Dallas and Dave Drotar gunning from the floor and Joe Lopez from the free-throw line, the Woodsiders closed the gap to 35-31 at the end of period three.

Four timely free throws by game high scorer Frankie Lee opened it up to 39-31 and the Bears were never in serious trouble after that.

The Cats found themselves without the services of Lopez, the SPAL's second-leading scorer, after he fouled out with 2:13 left in the third quarter. Cat center Gary Thurston fouled out with 4:23 left in the game and Drotar followed with 1:20 to go.

Enjoying their best shooting of the year, the Wildcats reached their peak in the third period, hitting 7-for-7 from the floor and a sizzling 55 per cent (11x20) in the second half. The Bears hit 38 per cent in the final half (8x21) largely on a 19-point fourth quarter onslaught when they snapped out of it and got their fast-break and pressing game working. They sank 11 of 12 free throw attempts in this period, indicating how hard the Cats were trying, but having it backfire.

Sophomore Burke's beautiful 25 and 30-foot overhead jumpers gave him the scoring leadership for Woodside as he hit 6-for-11 from the floor. Dallas hit a creditable 3-for-5, all in the second half.

Two of Them Jumped, But Which Two? . . . . . . The referee whistled a jump ball between Menlo-Atherton center Larry Kennedy (37) and Woodside center Gary Thurston (bottom of pile) in Friday's SPAL clash between the two local rivals. Thurston had slipped when he collided with Kennedy and they wound up in a pile. Woodsider Russ DeKruse (31) couldn't stop in time and joined the pileup. Holding up to see what happens are M-A's Bob Garner (26) and Rick Wright (left) and Woodside's Dick Burke (behind Garner). Bears won 54-42.

B Cage Action:

Bears Can Take It All

If — and only IF — nothing goes awry, the Menlo-Atherton Bear B's could clinch the South Peninsula Athletic League title Tuesday.

Coach Bob Gaughran's Bruins meet Cubberley this afternoon down there after the 3:15 varsity game and Tuesday travel to Palo Alto to take on the second-place Vikings, the only SPAL club left with a reasonable chance to catch them. Any combination of three M-A wins and Paly losses will do it. The Bears already have a 44-38 victory over the Vikelets under their belts.

The Bears took a break from league campaigning Tuesday and went down to Los Gatos to hammer the Los Gatos Bearcat B's 40-29 in a sloppy contest marred by frayed tempers, questioned calls by the referees and three technical fouls in the closing seconds.

Just the same it was their seventh straight victory, bringing their season record to 14-4, including an unblemished 8-0 in SPAL play.

Ken Hadden again led the M-A onslaught, scoring 14 points and coming down with 12 rebounds. Jeff Buckingham did his customary good job, pouring in 11.

It was all knotted up at 14-14 at halftime, but the Bears broke loose in the third quarter to ice it.

Little Mike Quirk, the SPAL's seventh-highest scorer, made his debut in Menlo-Atherton gear, having transferred from Sequoia at the beginning of the new semester Monday. The stubby sophomore was the mainstay of the Sequoia attack after starting the season with the Cherokee varsity but moving down to the B's for more experience just before league action began.

The Bruin Cubs bottled up SPAL scoring leader Mike Gilman last Friday night on their way to a 51-31 victory over the visiting Woodside Wildcat lightweights.

Dave Johnston's defensive efforts held Gilman to only six points, a considerable step down from the big center's 13.4 average output.

Bear center Ken Hadden, in the meantime, was pummelling the hoop for 18 points and high game honors, besides hauling in 19 rebounds, his high for the season. Gilman got 16 for the Kittens.

Never in serious danger of it being close, the Bears fought off a second-quarter Cat rally and left the floor at intermission with a 22-17 lead.

What killed the Cats was their poor shooting from the floor, a meager 28.3 per cent (15x53). The Bears popped in 42 per cent (21x50) of their attempts, including a hot 8x11 for Hadden.

Cats Still 0

The situation continued along at its bleak, winless pace this week for the Woodside Wildcat B cagers, with Tuesday's 46-40 loss at Sequoia the latest in an apparently interminable string of SPAL defeats.

With league-leading scorer Mike Gilman benched most of the second half and contributing only five points to the cause, the job of trying to contain the big, quick Sequoians fell to forwards Tom Brandenburger and Doug Wilson who did well but couldn't do it all. Brandenburger was game high scorer with 11 digits and Wilson had 10. Ron Paolucci and Larry Bishop shared scoring chores for the winners with 10 apiece.

Besides being top scorer, Brandenburger also led the Cat rebounders with 16, while Gilman came down with 13 of their 47 grabs.

The Kittens reversed their usual procedure by coming on strong in the second half and staying that way until the end. The customary bad third period didn't materialize for this one.

Their shooting eyes didn't improve any, though, as they connected on only .367 per cent (16x60) of their casts from the floor.

Troy Wins One

They almost made a go of it, but the Ravenswood Trojan B's couldn't cope with the ball-stealing tactics and fast break of the Palo Alto Viking lightweights and the visitors escaped with a 34-31 SPAL victory at Ravenswood gym Tuesday.

The Trobabes held a narrow lead throughout most of the first half, but a layin with a stolen ball gave the Vikes a 17-16 halftime lead in the last seconds before the buzzer and that was that. Coach Tom Crane's Trojans never got the upper hand again, although they never fell behind more than six points and usually were closer.

Deadeye Nate Branch led the Trobabes and everybody else with 10 counters. However, the juggernaut of Steve Moreno and Ron Briggs (nine each) and Craig Ritchie and Kerry Otterby (eight each) couldn't be contained, even though the taller Ravenswooders seized 50 rebounds, a pretty high catch for a B game.

Ken Kanazawa and Milt Dickerson netted six apiece for the Trobabes, Kanazawa also doing an outstanding job on the boards.

Ravenswood High's B basketballers, playing the kind of game that allows a coach's ulcers to take a vacation, stole the thunder from the varsity game at Carlmont Friday night and rapped the contending home team 27-16.

DICKERSON HITS 10

Milt Dickerson again led the team in scoring, canning 10 points, with his primary assistance coming from Nate Branch with eight and Denny Kanazawa with six. Although he didn't score, lanky Ken Kanazawa was a demon on the backboards, snaring 18 rebounds and outpositioning his opposition almost every time the ball came his way.

Brother Denny was the team quarterback. Crane said it was the best game of the year for the two brothers and for the team as a whole.

At Ravenswood High:

SPAL Mat Tourney Here

The interesting sport of high school wrestling comes en masse to Ravenswood High School Saturday—and there'll be the sound of bodies hitting the mat from 11 a.m. until 9:30 p.m. at night.

It's the third annual South Peninsula Athletic League wrestling tournament.

For Ravenswood, it will be the first time a SPAL tournament has been held at the two-year-old campus.

The action, under the direction of Ravenswood wrestling coach Norm Manoogian, will take place in the modern new Ravenswood High gymnasium.

Some 80 young grapplers from the seven SPAL high schools will turn out for the eliminations, beginning at 11 a.m. and continuing until 3 p.m.

The finals and consolation matches will start at 7:10 p.m. By this time, the field will have been trimmed to 48 wrestlers competing for the first four places in the 12 separate divisions.

FINALS AT 7:10 P.M.

"The tournament will officially open at 7:10 p.m.," Manoogian said. "At 7:15, we'll present an 'Introduction to Wrestling,' followed by the first matches in the 106-pound division at 7:30."

Manoogian will conduct the explanation of wrestling in high school, showing how it's scored and so on.

Then the matches will begin on two mats. The finals will be going on one side, the consolations in the same weight on the other.

When each weight classes' finishers are decided, they will walk to an Olympic-style podium, where the first, second, third and fourth place winners will be introduced and photographed. The next matches will then proceed.

The unlimited wrestlers should conclude the day of wrestling with finals at about 9:30 p.m.

BEARS FAVORED

Last year's tournament champion was Palo Alto, but the Vikings had to share the SPAL dual meet title with Menlo-Atherton and Sequoia. And it looks as though the Bears will be the favorites in this year's version of the wrestling event.

Referees for the day-long event will be Arvid Niemi of San Mateo High School and Mike Cohen of Ravenswood High, assisted in the 11 a.m.-3 p.m. preliminaries by Dick Howard.

Trojans To Close Up Early

More of the same old horrendous misfortune descended on the South Peninsula Athletic League whipping-boy Ravenswood Trojans Tuesday, this time from the Palo Alto Vikings — again — before the home fans at Ravenswood by a 69-23 count.

Anyway, it's almost over for coach Tom Crane's battered warriors. Tonight they visit Sequoia, a club they bowed to 58-37 last month. Tuesday it's a trip out to Woodside for a return match with the Wildcats, whom they provided with their only SPAL win, a 51-40 affair three weeks ago. They get to close up shop next Friday, a week ahead of some of the other SPAL clubs, playing host to Cubberley.

The B game starts things off at 7:30 tonight at Sequoia, with the varsity fight following at about 9. The Cherokees are currently on the crest of a four-game winning streak, including momentous SPAL victories over league co-leader Palo Alto and highly-rated Carlmont, a nonleaguer over Galileo and their latest, an easy 47-33 win over these same Wildcats that chewed up the Trojans. 'Nuff said.

Dealing at length with Tuesday's Paly fiasco isn't easy. It was the Vikings all the way and that's all there was to it. Coach Clem Wiser's huge, placidly-working quintet took the shortest and most direct route to the basket with their fast break, colossal height advantage and superior experience to simply smother the Trojans.

They were out front 19-2 at the end of the first period and, aided by Ravenswood's own inepitude at the shooting end of it, piled their lead up higher all along the way. The Vikes hit a .508 percentage (32x63) from the floor while the helpless Trojans could do no better than a .192 (10x52) through a Paly defense that wouldn't give up a clear shot.

Center Rich Hunt again was the big man for the Vikings with 17 points, a low total for him, but only because the starters were relieved early. His scoring sidekick, Bob Strohecker, added 12 to the superfluous total.

Troy center Tim Johnson came out on top of the scoring "parade" for the Cranemen with six. Jim Mosley and Gary Long each got four.

One thing that might brighten the statistical picture, to be optimistic about it. Although the Vikes did exactly three times as much scoring as the Trojans, they got only half again as many rebounds, 48-32. Convincing, no! No?

* * *

Carlmont's varsity pulled away in the fourth quarter, utilizing the free throw to good advantage, and posted a 50-34 SPAL victory over the still winless Trojans.

Ravenswood's varsity, which returns almost intact next season, with the major loss being that of senior forward Gary Long, stayed in the game throughout the first half.

Bright spot in the late going for Ravenswood was sophomore Clifton Grandy, who scored four points in the final seconds, hitting a set shot from the side and a follow-up in close.

DEVOS HITS 12

Top scorer for the night was Devos with 12 for Carlmont. The Scots' Sears tallied 11, Gary Gaskill contributed nine and Terry Stogner tanked seven. Ravenswood's Knaules and Raybon scored nine apiece to lead the Trojans. Long added six to the cause.

Long led the Trojan rebounding effort, getting 15. Tim Johnson and Raybon had 10 each.

Ravenswood scored 14 field goals and Carlmont had 16—but the big difference in the game was the free throw shooting. The Scots sent 18 one-pointers home and Ravenswood could only manage six.

Long, Dickerson:

CAPTAINS

Gary Long, the lone senior on this year's Ravenswood High varsity starting five, and high-scoring Milt Dickerson of the B squad were named team captains by vote of their mates this week.

Long, 6'1½" forward who is playing his first full season of varsity basketball, has become one of the varsity's more consistent scorers, leading the team in point-making in several games.

Dickerson, a sophomore, became the lightweight's top scorer as the season progressed. The 5'10" forward shows promise as a future varsity cager.

Industrial Cage Action Tonight

Menlo Park Recreation Department industrial league basketball continues tonight at Menlo-Atherton gym with league-leading Stanford Research Institute out to better their lot against last-place Lenkurt Electric in the first game at 7 p.m.

PSEA takes on Ampex at 8 p.m. Eimac draws a bye. Argonaut Insurance dropped out of the league two weeks ago, forcing a schedule revision and cutting the number of teams to five.

SRI whipped PSEA 42-23 in the only game played last Thursday.

Luckless Woodside Cagers Have Slim Chance to Escape Cellar

About the only way the Woodside Wildcats are going to stay out of the South Peninsula Athletic League cellar will be to beat the Ravenswood Trojans next Tuesday, and that isn't any guarantee that they've escaped completely.

Coach Bill Guttormsen's Cats were blasted by the rejuvenated Sequoia Cherokees 47-33 in Redwood City Tuesday for their eighth SPAL loss against a lone victory, that one over Ravenswood.

The Cats play host to the pssky Carlmont Scots today, a hardened group that's been nothing but trouble for the SPAL contenders, losing only by the barest margins to the leaders and capping their 1960 efforts Tuesday by knocking Cubberley out of the title picture with an overtime 41-39 victory.

The Scots hold an earlier 49-35 triumph over the Woodsiders in league play and things probably won't change much today if the Cats put on the same kind of show they did at Sequoia the other day.

The Tribe also repeated an earlier win, distinguished again by superior shooting from the floor, although this time high-jumping Gertis Mathews and co. couldn't control the backboards.

Sequoia hit a cool .425 per cent (17x40) of their attempts while the Cats were just plain cold, coming up with a .269 (14x52).

Forward Paul Dallas dragged in 11 of the Wildcats' 38 rebounds, most of them in the second half. Mathews brought down 14 of his team's 37.

Sequoia's well-known zone defense, designed for their postage-stamp court, kept the Cats shooting from the outside all afternoon. They hit seven buckets in each half, trailing 26-14 at the intermission but broke through to tie the Tribe reserves 13-13 in the fourth quarter.

Mathews led all scorers with 13. Teammate Ron Milan was next with 10.

Joe Lopez netted eight for the Cats, all field goals this time. Dave Drotar got seven and Dallas and Dick Burke six each.

Owens Conducts Popular Cage Sessions in BH

Highly-popular evening basketball sessions are being currently conducted by Belle Haven Park recreation supervisor R. C. Owens and assistant Sam Dawson two nights a week in the Belle Haven School multi-purpose building

The evening basketball on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. is packing the multi-purpose room, the Menlo Park recreation department said.

Owens and Dawson are now planning an informal "hunch" basketball league, in which teams are made up of four boys.

Afternoon recreational basketball for younger boys is also conducted at the Belle Haven Park courts. Owens is on duty beginning at 10 a.m. and is joined by Dawson at 3 p.m.

Oaks Blow Two More CCJC Tilts

At the risk of sounding hometownish, Menlo College coach Jack Rowley can't be blamed for wanting to forget the 76-71 Coast Conference debacle his Oaks suffered through down at Hartnell JC in Salinas Tuesday night. They are now 2-4 in the CCJC ledger.

"We hit about 60 percent of our shots," he said yesterday, "but we sure looked bad on defense."

The Oaks blew a 15-point third quarter lead to emphasize his point.

The Panthers — eight men strong — battled back from the deficit, finally tying it up on free throws resulting from two technical fouls. The Oaks never found their footing again, somewhat surprising in view of two previous and convincing triumphs over the Panthers.

Below are scoring and team statistics up to Friday's games.

M-A Can Win Mat Title Today

The South Peninsula Athletic League wrestling crown is on the line today for the league - leading Menlo-Atherton Bears, and the odds are that they'll be wearing it at about sunset tonight.

Coach Sam Lugonja's Bruins, with a 9-2 mark, visit the last-place Woodside Wildcats this afternoon while second-place Sequoia, at 8-2-1, must take on a rambunctious Cubberley Cougar aggregation that had entertained title hopes for themselves not too long ago.

In other SPAL action today, the Ravenswood Trojans go to Carlmont. Coach Norm Manoogian's Trojans can climb out of their half of the SPAL basement if they whip the fifth-place Scots and M-A handles Woodside in the expected fashion.

The Bruins reached the last plateau Tuesday with a 27-18 meet victory over the Scots at M-A gym, showing plenty of class and power in all weight divisions.

The turning point didn't come until the 141 lb. match however. With the score tied at 6-6 at that point, Greg Fisher won his biggest match of the season, decisioning Carlmont's hitherto - undefeated Shon Smillie 3-2.

M-A's Roger Williams (148) went on to win by pins, as did and Russ Banducci (unlimited) the Scots 194 ace Dick Vecki. Banducci still has yet to be defeated this year. His opponent Tuesday was 250-pound Harry Adamson, in his first match of the season after a long recovery period from a football injury.

106—LeClaire (M) d. Fisher 8-3; 115—Donate (M) d. Kelly 5-0; 123—Pogue (C) and Bunker (M) drew 0-0; 130—Means (C) d. Beall 9-0; 136—Hallgrimson (C) d. Lynch 7-5; 141—Fisher (M) d. Haves (3-1:10); Unl.—Banducci (M) p. H. Adamson (2-1:18).
Score: Menlo-Atherton 27, Carlmont 18.

Monotonous

Two pins in the final matches did in the Woodside Wildcat matmen Thursday as the Carlmont Scots came from behind to win 26-17. The lead changed hands twice as the match went along, the Scots leading 11-3 at one time, but age going into the 194 pound match.

Walt Takahashi (115 pound), Al Balogh (136), Lennea Borg (148), Tom Morton (157) and Chuck Clutter (168) won decisions to give the Cats their temporary lead.

Woodside's Jack Dempsey and Carlmont's Gary Fairbanks drew but then the Scots' Jerry Schiffman pinned Cliff Hill and Dick Vecki pinned Larry Jordan for the meet victory.

106—Sears (C) d. Friegan 5-0; 115—Takahashi (W) d. Kelly 7-1; 123—Pogue (C) d. Vargas 2-0; 130—Means (C) p. Woolery (2-1:25); 136—Balogh (W) d. Halvgrimson 6-1; 141—Smillie (C) d. Score: Carlmont 26, Woodside 17.

It was a good nip-and-tuck wrestling match for a while Tuesday between coach Vern Sterling's Woodside Wildcats and the visiting Sequoia Cherokees, but when it came to the minated completely even when Sterling had wrestlers to use. It ended up at 31-14 Sequoia.

Top matches of the day were Walt Takahashi's 6-2 decision over Sequoia's Mike Russell (115) and Jim Sworm's 7-6 win over Woodside's Al Balogh. This was only the second loss of the season for Balogh, one of the few consistent winners the Wildcats have this year.

John Woolery (130), Dick Smith (141) and Lennea Borg (148) won decisions to keep the Cats in contention until three pins, a forfeit and a decision gave it to the Cherokees.

106—Hawn (S) and Friegang (W) drew 2-2; 115—Takahashi (W) d. Russell 6-2; 123—Pascual (S) d. Himmelwight 6-0; 130—Woolery (W) d. Buckwald 5-2; 136—Sworm (S) d. Balogh 7-6; 141—Smith (W) d. T. Score: Sequoia 31, Woodside 14.

Troy Topped

Cubberley High came up with a strong effort against Ravenswood High wrestlers last Thursday and turned in a one-sided 36-8 decision over the Trojans in the SPAL matches.

Lone bright spots for the Trojans were the decision victory of Donny Smothers in the 106-pound division and Gary Shouse's pinning of Hull in a 141-pound battle.

Smothers, a fiery competitor, decisioned Ty Chew 5-0 in the starter, but Cubberley took quick control with four straight decisions, including Ray Chew's pin of Rey Javier of Ravenswood in the 130-pound match.

Shouse maneuvered Hull into a pin for the Trojans at 45 seconds of the second period in their match. It was the last victory for Ravenswood. Closest of the rest was Bishop's 3-0 decision over Earl Johnson in the 168-pound match.

106—Smothers (R) d. T. Chew 5-0; 115—C. Lucas (C) d. Kameda 2-0; 123—Takiguchi (C) d. G. Iwatsubo 6-3; 130—R. Chew (C) p. Javier (2-0:30); 136—Ramos (C) d. Funabiki 5-2; 141—Shouse (R) p. Action Dampened By Rains Here

Rain took care of most of the action in Menlo Park Recreation Department's fifth and sixth grade basketball league last week, but the seventh and eighth grades, playing at Burgess and Menlo-Atherton gyms respectively, played as usual. The results:

Bowling Greens Wanted . . .

From basketball it's quite a change of direction toward the old English game of bowling on the green, but we heard about it this week in the form of a plea for support for a bowling green in Menlo Park.

★ ★ ★ ★

Lawn bowling is a game the older folks enjoy because it provides good exercise without exhaustion. With a ball weighted on one side and a rather difficult target to shoot at, it also requires considefable concentration. As soon as the ball slows down the weight begins to pull it in a curve —and it's nothing like you ever saw on a baseball diamond.

★ ★ ★ ★

Anyway, there's a plan afoot to establish a lawn bowling club in Menlo Park if the facilities can be obtained. Several Menlo Park members of the popular Palo Alto Lawn Bowling Club have petitioned Recreation Director Fred Parsons and recreation commissioner Joe Kelly for a spot on the next budget for the required 120-foot square field.

★ ★ ★ ★

The thing that hit us about all this was the cost—$25,000. A green needed for this game is an expensive proposition, worth it if it can be afforded, but it looks like the prospective club members will have to prove it themselves.

★ ★ ★ ★

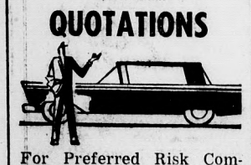

The green down in Palo Alto draws large crowds on week day afternoons, but we wonder if the cost would be justified in Menlo Park. Someone who knows more about it than us will have to answer that one, but considering that Burgess Park is unsuitable because of the baseball and football played on it, the whole thing would resolve into a search for more land to put it on.

★ ★ ★ ★

A bowling green has to be laid out with plenty of drainage and exceptional firmness and flatness. To be playable the grass has to be kept cut to only one-quarter inch high. Expensive maintenance too.

Still, if the Recreation Department could see their way clear, we're all for it. We can always use another news source.

Marsh Road Project:

Gun Club Financial Drive Kicked Off

Menlo Park Gun Club's proposed building construction will begin as soon as final financial arrangements have been made, Club Chief Range Officer Ben Shade announced this week.

Target date for ground breaking on the 1¼-acre site for the big clubhouse has been set for April 15, Shade said. Gun club members will meet sometime this week or next to decide what to do in the way of fund-raising activities for the project.

The clubhouse will cost the club $25,000, Shade said. So far, $3000 has come through contributions, and Shade expected the other $22,000 will be pledged in time to allow the clubhouse to be started on schedule.

"We'll accept pledges running into May, June or July so we can start on time," he stated. "We think the people of the community will get behind us on this thing. In return the clubhouse will be not only the Gun Club headquarters, but its many facilities will be at the disposal of the community any time they want to use them."

The clubhouse will be built in the Bohannon industrial tract just north of Marsh road and east of Bayshore in Menlo Park. Floor area of the building will cover 6100 square feet, or 8400 square feet if enough money is raised to build a proposed second story over the front.

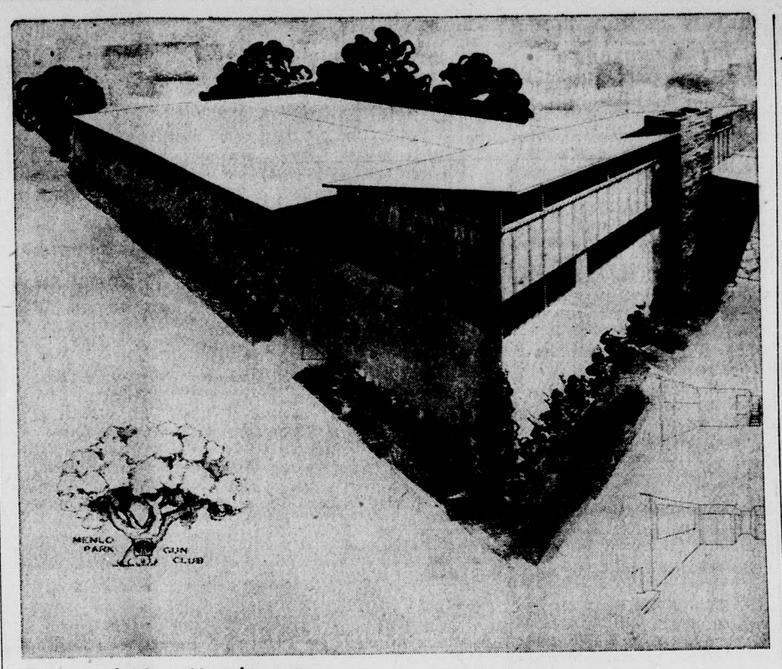

Plans also call for outside picnic grounds and archery, skeet and trap shooting ranges.

The floor of the rifle range will be of "armor-coat" plaster, a type of plaster that won't nick if struck by stray bullets, Shade said. For dances or meetings, the multi-purpose room can be converted by simply drawing a curtain across the entire length of the target area.

Shade said that the clubhouse construction need has assumed a new urgency since plans were first drawn up last year. At present the Gun Club is doing its shooting at the Stanford University rifle range, but that range is due to be closed down in June.

Therefore, Shade went on, the appeal has gone out for contributions to help build the club's new quarters. There are approximately 950 members in the organization at present, 350 in the Menlo Park Gun Club (18 years and older) and 600 in the Menlo Park Junior Rifle Club (8-18 years old).

Anyone wishing to make contributions, Shade said, may contact him at DA 2-0590, James O. Beckwith at EM 9-5306 or Lee Engleman at EM 6-6008.

Proposed New Headquarters . . .
. . . of the Menlo Park Gun Club are shown in this artist's conception of the $25,000 project. Target date for beginning construction is April 15, provided sufficient money is pledged. The elongated rear of the building is the shooting range which may be converted into a multi-use room for dances and meetings. The front contains a lounge, kitchen and dining room.

NOW WITH OWLS

Former Menlo-Atherton basketballer Bill Hilton and Alleroy Kennon, one of last year's big wheels for the Cubberley cage squad, registered at Foothill College of Mountain View at mid-semester and are now playing ball with the Owl varsity. Hilton scored 12 points in his first game with the Owls last week.

Rum Dums Take Lead in High School Rec Basketball Loop

The Rum-Dums took a pair of games to bounce into a quick lead in the opening week of the Ravenswood Recreation and Park District's high school basketball league, defeating the Spooks 34-33 and the Screwballs 39-29.

The Spooks and Screwballs each were 1-1 for the week and the Spartans dropped both of their initial tilts.

Here's how the action went:

The Rum-Dums squeaked past the Spooks 34-33 in the league's first game, held Tuesday night of last week. Willie Freeman tanked 16 for the wnnners, aided by Arnold Wiley's eight points. Lionel Winston meshed 10 and Charles Wade hit for seven.

Contributing good efforts were Don White, Milky Johnson and Mel Wellington.

Second game of the night found the Screwballs outscoring the Spartans 50-30 with Andy Johnson finding the range for 19 points and Ken Fujihara whipping in 18. The Spartans' Jim Sossaman and Bob Daniels each contributed 10 points.

On Wednesday, Feb. 3, the Rum-Dums did it again, topping the Screwballs 39-29. Freeman was tops for the night with 15.

GYM OPENS ON HOLIDAY

Since Lincoln's birthday is a school holiday, the Ravenswood Recreation and Park District gymnasium will be supervised on that day — Friday, Feb. 12.

Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 until 5 p.m. The fifth and sixth grade basketball league and the Friday evening folk dance group will not meet on the holiday.

Fifth, Sixth Grade Cage League Action

Last week's action in the fifth and sixth grade basketball league operated by the Ravenswood Recreation and Park District was featured by two victories by the Bears.

On Feb. 2, the Bears defeated the Colts 10-4. Arthur Edge scored six points for the Bears and was outstanding defensively by blocking five shots.

Billy Mann and Bob Davis each scored two points for the Colts. John Funibiki, Ellis Hendrex and Harold Spaulding each played fine defensive games for the Bears.

On Feb. 3, the 49ers defeated the Rams 20-13. Cleveland Kennard was the high point man for the 49ers with eight. Jack Roundtree led the attack for the Rams with 10 points. Outstanding players of the game also included John Bergstrom, Jackie Graves, Steven Gotch, Danny Wilks and Harold Spaulding.

Repellency Durable But Not Permanent

Your raincoat need not make you look like a sea captain braving a nor'wester. The National Institute of Dryclean ing reassures home sewers that most drycleaners can "water-repel" your printed cottons to make them suitable as lightweight and colorful rainwear items. Your dry cleaner would use what is known as a durable water-repellent.

But how durable is durable? Don't expect it to be permanent. Durable means it will last quite a while, but if it begins to lose its water-repellency, says the National Institute of Drycleaning, a drycleaner can restore it next time the garment is drycleaned.

Dry Cleaning Alone Doesn't Wear Clothes Suits Fully Wearable After 50 Cleanings

Drycleaning alone doesn't wear out clothing, an exhaustive two year study has shown.

This is the essence of a complete report issued this month by the National Institute of Drycleaning on a study of what happens to people's clothing during wear. Here's how the Institute's research was conducted:

Five all-wool hard-finished worsted $75 men's suits and four all-wool soft-finished $51 women's suits were used in the wear test.

One suit in each set was kept as an original for comparison purposes. Two suits in each set were drycleaned and pressed fifty times. The remainder were given normal wear and drycleaned and pressed as the need arose. The men's suits were worn an average of 1500 hours during the two years, the women's 600 hours.

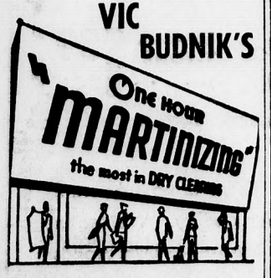

At the end of the fifty drycleanings and the two years' wear the suits were coded to mask identification and then examined by two different panels of ten people. One panel was made up of fabric and textile laboratory experts, the other of consumers.

Both panels agreed that all the suits were still completely wearable. That was the only thing they were unanimous on. Only eight on the consumer panel correctly picked out the original men's suit though all the textile experts did. When it came to the women's suits, three (30%) of the textile experts and six (60%) of the consumers picked the wrong suit as the original.

Dr. Lyle concluded:
"It is difficult, especially for an untrained person, to identify a suit that has been worn for a two-year period and drycleaned at normal intervals, from a suit that has been drycleaned and finished fifty times."

The Institute also points out that fifty cleanings and pressings—far more than most suits recive in a lifetime of use—have left these suits in a fully wearable condition.

Rec Leaders To Attend Conference

A large delegation from the Menlo Park Recreation Department will check in at the California and Pacific Southwest Recreation Conference at San Jose Municipal Auditorium Sunday morning for four days of meetings, workshops and general hobnobbing with fellow recreation workers and administrators from all over California.

The Conference begins at 9 a.m. Sunday with an official opening of exhibits and Conference registration and will end with an 11 a.m. meeting Wednesday, Feb. 17, with Joseph Prendergast, executive director of the National Recreation Association as the principal speaker.

Attending from Menlo Park will be Fred Parsons, director of recreation; Stan Sexton, supervisor of athletics and aquatics; Doris Kogler, supervisor of playgrounds and special events; and recreation commissioners Dr. Kenneth Brown, Mrs. Ray Toffanelli, Mrs. Roseann Taylor, Joe Kelly and O. H. Olson.

Exhibits to be displayed by the Menlo Park contingent will be models of the new Menlo Park Civic Center, Willow Oaks Park and Belle Haven Park, a colored drawing of the Nealon Park development scheduled for completion next year and literature on the Department's band program and choral, orchestra, nature study, interpretative dance and sports clinics.

Director Parsons said this week that he'll be attending workshops on legal matters, outdoor recreation plans, fees and charges, marinas, and administrative office management.

Sexton is headed for sessions on sports programs, swimming pools, school — recreation department cooperation, and budget preparation and control.

For Miss Kogler, it'll be workshops concerned with performing arts, programming for teenagers, recreation curriculum, a program swap shop, recreation for the aging and budget preparation and control and staff responsibility.

The commissioners will attend a commission and board members workshop, a California public outdoor recreation plan briefing and school—recreation and area planning workshops.

Rec Ramblings

We have discussed the duties of the Recreation Commission and the director of recreation in some of the past articles. Today we shall try to enumerate the duties of the supervisors. Two supervisors are included in the departmental patterns; they are the Supervisor of Aquatics and Sports and the Supervisor of Special Events and Women's and Girls Activities.

The supervisor of aquatics and sports duties read briefly as follows: Aquatics —plans and directs facilities and staff of swimming pool. During the summer months the work involves selecting and supervising a large staff of lifeguards, instructors and attendants and scheduling aquatic sports, competition and events.

He schedules and promotes and organizes the city wide summer aquatics program including such activities as swimming instruction, and water meets, recommends the selection of swimming pool personnel and trains new employees, makes periodic inspections of the pool, supervises its repair and writes articles in the field of aquatics and related subjects.

Sports — plans, organizes, administers competitive sports programs throughout the city, promotes interest and participation of the general public in organized competitive sports such as baseball, basketball, football and other sports, arranges for and provides public or other facilities for sports use and recruits officials for sport events, collaborates with the representatives of schools and with industrial, church and athletic associations to coordinate such activities with municipal athletic services and programs and stimulates competitive play, inspects playgrounds and facilities to insure safety and advises on and recommends the acquisition and development or improvement of new and present sports facilities.

The supervisor of women's and girls' activities duties are: plans and directs a recreational program for women and girls, visits playgrounds to observe leaders regarding their activities, evaluates work of women leaders, interviews applicants, conducts group conferences for women leaders in which current problems are discussed and departmental policies are explained. She plans activity programs which are suitable for girls and women of all ages, prepares and plans special events for city-wide participation such as play-days, tournaments, and festivals.

She schedules all dance activities and procures teachers, music and equipment relating to them and takes care of all dance registration and supervises special programs such as arts and crafts.

The above duties listed for both supervisors contain only a basic enumeration as the jobs are quite far reaching, and to enumerate all the duties would be out of the question.

Landscaper To Speak at Garden Meet

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Mary Gordon, landscape architect and instructor at the University of California. She will speak on "Lots and Problems" and will illustrate her talk with slides.

Visitors are welcome and further inofrmation may be obtained from Mrs. William Stelmach, DA 2-5968.

...haw Stays On as County Park and Recreation Director

...an Mateo County Park and ...reation Director Ralph ...w, nationally known as a ...nty park and recreation au...rity, has turned down an ...r to head the State Recrea...n Directors in the Division ...Recreation of the California ...te Department of Natural ...sources, it was announced ...s week.

As a reason, he stated: "We are in the middle of a five year master plan of development in all County parks. I want to see the plan completed. I want to see the Butano State Park developed, the State beaches developed, the State riding and hiking trails developed in cooperation with the cities and County; I want to see the Skyline Parkway completed."

Director Shaw has served the County since 1944 and has developed what many consider the outstanding park and recreation system in the country. Shaw attributed this to the far-sightedness of the Boards of Supervisors, County Manager, and Recreation Commissions serving the County.

"Their planning and acquisition of lands for parks have made us nationally known and have provided for the leisure time needs of the citizens of San Mateo County," he said.

Shaw became known statewide through his participation in conservation programs

GARDENER'S CHECKLIST

1. If you plan to prune an overgrown rhododendron, the job is best done this month or early next, even though it means lopping off some flower buds.

2. Check with your nurseryman about the proper spray for deciduous fruit trees.

3. Fuchsias can be pruned after danger of frost has passed. Remove potted fuchsias from pots and replace some of the old soil with new.

4. Work steer manure into flower beds and around roses if the ground is dry enough to be workable.

5. Camellias are fertilized after they bloom, but don't rush it with early blooming varieties. Next month is soon enough to start.

Shrubs—Low and Wide

If snapdragons are your dish, the new year holds something special in store for you. That's the word from local nurserymen, who are high on the new Rocket series of snapdragons.

The Rockets are winners of a 1960 All-America award and with good reason. They are tall, like the Maximum snaps, bearing beautiful spikes of bloom in a good mixture of color: Bronze, lavender, red, yellow, rose and white. And the best news of all, they show good tolerance for heat, making them one of the best snaps for summer bloom in warmest parts of the state.

There's good news for marigold lovers, too, in the form of a new All-America dwarf that goes by the name of Spun Gold. Its blooms are large for a dwarf and heavily massed on compact plants that run about 12 inches high. The flowers are chrysanthemum type, a rich golden yellow in color and its big asset aside from looks is the fact that it blooms earlier than most African marigolds. Look for it later this month or early next when the weatherman gives nurserymen the go-ahead.

There's a new marigold in the Climax series this year, also, but seed is still scarce so you may not find it. This one is Toreador, another AA winner, and it boasts huge orange blooms on medium tall plants. If Toreador is not available, look for other members of the new Climax series.

As so often seems the case, the petunia family offers good new varieties for California gardens this year. The novelty petunia Mercury is sure to be a favirite, a heavenly blue. Others are Sugar Plum, a bright orchid pink petunia, penciled in its center with rich, purple hues; Neptune, a medium violet blue and Satellite, a bright rose colored petunia with a perfect white star. All these are singles. If your taste runs to ruffled forms, try Sabre Dance, a lovely crimson introduction with a white star; or Lavender Lace, a lavender-rose newcomer that is both ruffled and fringed.

Gladiolas can be planted at two or three-week intervals to provide a long succession of bloom.

Water Ballet:

Menlo-Atherton Aquacade Plans Come Swimmingly

By NANCY HAWKINS

Final selections for the Menlo-Atherton High School's water ballet aquacade have been made. The presentation will be held at the M-A pool April 8 and 9, and will be based on a storybook land theme.

First on the program will be a swimming interpretation of the "Ten Little Indians" with Jeannette Krohn, Marilee Green, Marsha Mirsky, Sharon Josue, Marge Morton, Sue Kayser, Suzy Schwerin, Bonnie Elton, Koubi Domain and Sherry Ziegler.

"The Sugar Plum Fairies," a trio with Gail Hammond, Marcia Pearson and Sue Sleeper will follow. Then Pat Sheets and Pam Lange will swim as "Alice and the Rabbit," from the story "Alice in Wonderland."

Mrs. Frances Hoffman's advanced modern dance class will perform during the swimming break, and Sharon Josue will follow them with her solo as "Sleeping Beauty."

Next on the list, Sue Kayser, Diane Brecker, Mary-Ann Everly, Sara Stapleton and Fran Pares will present a comedy in water based on "The Ugly Duckling" story. Gloria Sylvester, Bonnie Jane Woodard and Sue Somers will continue as the "Wooden Soldiers," and a float number called "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star," with Carol Jones, Janice Christopherson, Marcia Pearson, Sue Sleeper and Pam Lange will follow.

Jan Dunlap, Pat Parnie, Ida Allen, and Judy Schultz will present "Goldilocks and the Three Bears," and Susan Dill and Nancy Hawkins will be "The Siamese Cats" in their duet from the "Lady and the Tramp."

"Hickory Dickory Dock" will follow with Sue Lindfors, Koubi Domain, Georgia Bryson, and Lynn Downey, and then Kathy Howe and Mary Beth Cronk will do a paddle board abrocat routine as "Raggedy Ann and Andy."

Susy Schwerin, Marcia Mirsky, Bonnie Elton, and Marilee Green will swim as "Mermaids" to be followed by Jeannette Krohn doing her solo as "Cinderella." The finale will be a kick board routine, the boards being gaily decorated.

Mrs. Jeanne Diederichsen is faculty instructor and Sharon Josue is the student general advisor. Working with the production are committee chairmen Marcia Mirsky, Jeannette Krohn, Sue Kayser, Pam Lange, Pat Sheets, Laurie Browning, and Nancy Hawkins. Laurie Browning will be narrator for the performances.

Comedia's 'Thireen Clocks' Is Fantasy at Its Funniest, but Best Suited to Adults

For those who like fantasy — adult fantasy — there's no better place to find it than at the Loft Theater in Palo Alto on Saturday and Sunday nights.

The vehicle that's been tickling audiences in Comedia Repertory Company's old improvised upstairs playhouse at Emerson and Hamilton streets is James Thurber's delightful account of "The Thirteen Clocks."

The trials and tribulations of the two lovers forbidden to speak to each other and the various intrigues concerning sex and violence aren't calculated to make this one a sure-fire bet for children, although they might enjoy the music and the comedy that the adults are finding so enjoyable.

Comedia's oriental type of staging added considerably to the illusion of fantasy, with that actors themselves running the props on and off the darkened stage between scenes. All this was made necessary because the play was written originally for television, but no matter. The thunderstorm produced by the ballet dancers with wooden lightning flashes and cymbals and the removal of a "dead" body by covering it with a black shroud was delightful.

Eric Silins does a very convincing job as Golux, the central character of the story. Silins opens by telling a story to some birds, being flown by hand by some of the ballet dancers. His adventure then is told in flashback, then ending with the birds finally leaving him to rest.

Philip Schultz is excellent as the Duke, a man whose power has led him to "kill" time, but commanding his 13 clocks to stop, which they did.

Shapleigh Howell and Barbara Stii, as the Prince and Princess, conform very well to the idea of the typical star-struck lovers.

Dorothy Wyman, as Hagga the witch, cries tears of jewels upon hearing a sad story. Black light on flourescent bits of wood on a darkened stage, dropped from over her shoulder by the invisible and hard-working ballet dancers provide a startling sight of the colored googaws falling to the floor in the total blackness.

A funny and very clever attempt at military precision is made by Richard Hornby as Hark, leader of the Duke's guards, done by the ever-present girls of the ballet.

"The Thirteen Clocks" curtaintimes are 8:30 p.m. Saturdays and 7:30 p.m. Sundays. Reservations may be made by calling DA 6-8317.

'Charm Course' for Girls Begins At Rec Center

The "charm course" for seventh and eighth grade girls will begin today at 7 p.m. in the Ravenswood Recreation and Park District social center at 550 Bell street, East Palo Alto.

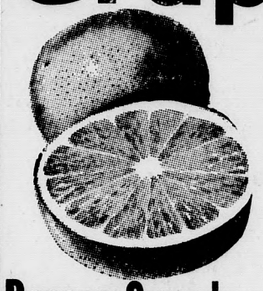

The course will be taught by Dorothy Daley, operator of charm schools in Palo Alto and Sunnyvale.

Correct posture, walking, sitting and standing positions as well as clothing, fashion and hair-styling hints will be included in the course.

The gladiolus—of all bulbs—gives us the longest bloom in California. If you plant glads now and repeat the process every two or three weeks until July, you will get a correspondingly long season of long bloom, lasting almost until it's time to make the first plantings again for next year.

Founders Day Tea Scheduled Today

The anniversary of the found- ing of the National Congress ofy Parents and Teachers will be celebrated today when the PTA units of the five schools n the Menlo Park Elementary School District gather for tea at Encinal School.

The program is scheduled for 3:15, when Mrs. Ina Porter, principal of Encinal, will wel- come members to this yearly event, and the fourth grade Bluebirds will lead the flag sa- lute.

Honored guests, including persons who have long served in the field of education and parent-teacher work, will be introduced at the meeting by Oscar H. Olson, director of at- tendance and child welfare for San Mateo County schools.

Entertainment for the after- noon will consist of musical se- lections by Mrs. Lyman Wear and Mrs. C. W. Woodin, and an original skit, "Ye Bonnet Shoppe," written and directed by Anne B. Hammermann. The cast is composed of PTA mem- bers from each of the five schools.

By purchas- ing honorary life memberships for the individuals it selects to honor, each school contri- butes to a statewide revolving fund which provides loans and scholarships for the higher ed- ucation of worthy high school graduates. Secondly, with the giving of an annual birthday gift to the PTA organization, funds are donated for the ex- tension of service in communi- ty, state and national levels.

Couple Celebrates 50th Anniversary

"All I can tell you is that we love."

With a smile and a gesture, Gustavo Villata, 73, explained in these words the main ingre- dient for the 50 years of hap- py married life which he and his wife, Maria Louisa, 67, will mark tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Villata re- side at 2125 Lincoln avenue, East Palo Alto, in a home they built themselves. They have lived here since 1952.

Villata glanced at his wife as he told how he felt about their life together and she smiled back.

The couple met in 1909 in the Italian town of Porotenone. They were married there in St. George's Catholic church in 1910.

In 1921, the Villatas came to the United States and settled in San Francisco where he took up his trade as a carpen- ter. He is now retired, except for taking on small jobs in the area, and Mrs. Villata is em- ployed at Schlage Lock Co., South San Francisco. She was to have retired, too, several years ago—but her employers wanted her to stay on.

Mrs. Villata says now that she will end her working days in June.

Villata, who was a carpen- ter at the Mattson Line ship- yards in San Francisco, did most of the work on their East Palo Atlo home.

Villata said that love, to him, meant "always think of the oth- er one first."

When Mrs. Villata's days off arrive, she's often greeted in the morning with coffee brought to her in bed by her husband.

The Villatas have one son, Gustavo Villata Jr., who oper- ates a television repair service in Los Banos, Calif. They have one grandchild.

Officiating at the double ring rites was the Rev. John Wyatt and Mr. Etienne escort- ed his daughter to the altar.

WHITE LACE

For her wedding, Dorelle wore a short gown of white lace over pale pink satin. The fitted bodice of the gown was fashioned with a scoop neck- line and a pink satin sash cir- cled the waistline. Her shoul- der length veil of pale pink il- lusion was held in place by a pink satin crown accented with seed pearls. She carried a bou- quet of pink roses and lily of the valley.

Attending the bride as ma- tron of honor was Mrs. Peter Bonnett of Redwood City. She wore a full skirted, ballerina length gown in pale blue with a veil of blue as a headpiece. Her bouquet was of flowers in shades complimentary to her gown.

Serving as bridesmaid was the bride's cousin, Gayle Etienne of Hillsborough. She wore an ivory gown styled identically to that of the honor attendant and a cap of light green veiling.

Standing with the bride- groom as best man was his brother, Robert Donaghey. Ro- ger Etienne, brother of the bride, served as usher for the 2 p.m. ceremony.

A small reception for mem- bers of the immediate families and the wedding party was held at the Etienne home fol- lowing the ceremony. Greeting guests, Mrs. Etienne wore a pearl gray knit dress trimmed in seed pearls and gunmetal gray accessories. Her corsage was of white orchids. Also in the receiving line was Mrs. Donaghey, mother of the bride- groom. She complimented her ensemble with a white orchid corsage.

Variety Show Set By Senior Citizens

"Tonight at 8" is the ambitious program slated as the first undertaking of its kind by more than 60 members of Little House, senior activity center in Menlo Park.

The production is a variety show to be held at 8 p.m. on February 19 at the Palo Alto High School Auditorium with proceeds to augment the funds for the housing project of the Peninsula Volunteers, Inc., for Little House members.

Staff members for the performance include Mrs. Faith Iddings, program director at the activity center; Ray Fenton of Menlo Park, producer; Al Walker, stage manager; Ralph Fillias of Menlo Park, stage construction, and Jean Wayne, also of Menlo Park, costumes.

Opening the show will be the male glee club. The production will consist of two acts, the first of which will be set in a bar of an early day, and the second will show a national barn dance setting. Two inner settings will be included in the acts, "Memory Lane" and "Nell's Bells," a melodrama.

Mrs. Hazel Jacques of Menlo Park, who plays one of the prima donnas, came to the area from Boston. The incoming president of Little House, James Lawson, will play three parts in the production and Bill Kells of Menlo Park, a former Chicago police captain, has been cast appropriately as a cop.

Another dancer in the show, Mrs. Mildred Fenton of Menlo Park, sold advertising to a chain of religious publications until a year ago when she became a member of the senior activity center.

A former mayor of Menlo Park and a recent president of Little House, Joseph Day, will perform four parts in four different scenes in the variety show. His major role will be that of the hero in the melodrama.

Ray Fenton of Menlo Park producer of the play, divides his time between Little House and the Stanford Convalescent Home, where he provides recreation for ailing children, a hobby of his for many years standing.

What's Doing Among Menlo's Teen-Agers

By SHERRY ZIEGLER EM 8-8798

SURPRISE BREAKFASTS

There were three surprise breakfasts during the past two weeks. On January 26, Mary Ott was taken out of bed by her friends and taken down to Ken's Pancake House before she had changed her clothes. Following her breakfast, her well-wishers didn't want her to be late for school so they deposited her on the school grounds, pajamas and all! Well, Mary, we hope you had a very happy birthday in spite of the way in which the greetings reached you. Among the birthday pranksters arranging Mary's party were Barbara Greenberg, Judy Klein, Laurie Thompson, Judy Glenn, Susan Fleming, Lynn Downey, Diane Smith, and Linda Davis.

The second in this series of kidnap-surprise breakfasts was held on January 29, early Friday morning. This birthday affair was held by Lynn Downey and Darlynn Aarons and given for Linda Garcia. Her kidnappers, in this case, did allow her to get dressed and then go for breakfast. Included in the group were Wendy Ford, Carol Dauphinais, Judy Cooper, Barbara Greenberg, Joan Sieke, Penny Sewell, Deanne Dorn, Judy Norcott, Laurie Thompson, Diana Dexter, Sally Newport, Jane and Sue Griffith, Connie Grellman, Candy Kraft, Suzanne Fleming, Diane Smith, Midge Hareid, Cindy Fraley, Carol Davis, Gail Graham, Mary Martin, Eileen White, Carolyn Hannon and Christy Victor.

On Monday morning, February 1, Sue McClenahan was the victim of the surprise breakfast. She was blindfolded and taken to Ken's Pancake House by her well wishers who included Aura Lee Klicka, Marcia Mirsky, Jane Brechler, Teresa Gerbo. Cynthia Witbeck. Linda Waldo. Sharon Hatlett and Sheryl Dunn. The party was arranged by Bonnie Elton and her home was the place of meeting by the group at sunrise.

On Sunday, January 31, Mrs. Biocini and Sue Fehring held a surprise birthday dinner for Linda's birthday. After Linda opened her presents the girls all enjoyed their dinner and listened to records. Those girls waiting to surprise Linda included Aura Lee Klicka, Diane Fors, Mary Lewis, Vicki Andrews, Sharon Hatlett, Marilee Green, Sheryl Dunn, Jane Brechler, Bonnie Elton, Marcia Mirsky, Lea Jackson, Diana Shovlin, Yolanda Strack, Susie Schwerin, Lynn Livingston, Teresa Gtrbo, Sue Betts, Juliann Schaeffer, Cynthia Witbeck, Linda Lauritzen, Gayle Gowdy, Noel Howard, Sheri Smith, Debbie Dant and Kathy Nelson.
